N. E. A. ELECTS CHICAGO WOMAN AS PRESIDENT

Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of schools of Chicago, was elected president of the National Educational Association in the New Old South Church this noon.

The strength of Mrs. Young's following over that of X. Z. Snyder, superintendent of the State Normal School of Colorado, was shown when a motion was made to substitute a minority report of the nominating committee for that of the majority report, which had nominated Snyder.

The minority report was passed by a vote of 617 to 374 over the majority report.

Vote of Nominating Committee.

The vote of the nominating committee was:

Total number of votes—47.

Necessary to a choice—24.

X. Z. Snyder—28.

Mrs. Ella Flagg Young—19.

The adherents of Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of schools of Chicago, immediately resolved to offer a minority report at the election.

When the election began at noon time the minority members of the committee became active. Determined effort was made to secure substitution of a minority report, with the name of Mrs. Young heading the list, for the majority report naming Snyder.

MRS. YOUNG'S SUPPORTERS RALLIED.

Expressing indignation over the fact that their candidate had been defeated in the session of the nominating committee, the supporters of Mrs. Young hurried to the New Old South Church to attend the election session.

The Snyder adherents were just as busy. The result was a rush to get into the New Old South auditorium. Two policemen at the door held the stream of delegates in check till each one entering had displayed either Cub or blue badge of active membership or proper credentials.

Mrs. Young came into the church at 11:40 o'clock. Amid cheers by her following, she went to a seat in the middle of the floor. She was asked by scores of her friends:

"Will you run against Mr. Snyder and the report of the nominating committee?"

To them she said:

"If you want me, then I'll run."

This was accepted by her followers with intense satisfaction. They immediately prepared for battle. Younger members of the association were buttonholed here and there. Electioneering was rife. It was like a red-hot political convention among men.

1,800 Delegates Present.

The election session was called to order at 12:15 by James Y. Joyner, retiring president. He had just presided by virtue of his office, at the session of the nominating committee which had voted for Snyder over Mrs. Young.

Every seat in the auditorium was occupied when President Joyner called for order. From 1,800 to 2,000 delegates were there. The majority was composed of women.

Reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and accepted without delay. Everyone was waiting for the report of the nominating committee.

This was read by President Joyner as presiding officer of that committee. This report, nominating Mr. Snyder for president, nominated Mrs. Young for one of the vice-presidencies.

The minute President Joyner closed the minority fight was on. Miss Caroline E. Blake of New York, seated down front, rose. She was the delegate who had put Mrs. Young's name before the nominating committee. The reding of this Young adherent was the signal for frantic applause from the Young faction.

Bidden to come to the rostrum if she wished to address the meeting, Mis Blake did so. She said:

Mrs. Flagg's Name Cheered.

"As a member of the nominating committee, in which the vote was comparatively close, I had the honor of presenting the name of Mrs. Ella Flagg Young of Chicago. (Cheers.)

"I understand that this minority report is without precedent in the annals of the association. I am glad that the woman who has been breaking records in the West in educational lines, is the first to be brought forward in the association. Therefore I welcome the chance to make the minority report.

"Never the first time a woman has been mentioned for the high office held by so many prominent men. We have a woman present who stands high among men and who is high in international fame. We have come to many conventions, but have never been heard. Is it surprising now that we have asked to be heard? We have a woman to speak for us in Mrs. Young, who will speak for us. It is said that too many presidents of the association have come from Illinois. However, that is for trifling to be considered. We do not stop to ask from what state the President of the United States comes. Every hamlet and town in the United States has been talking as to who would be the new president of the N. E. A. Mrs. Young comes not from Illinois, but from all the United States. I move the substitution of a minority report for the majority report of the nominating committee." (Uproarious applause from the Young faction.)

Cries of "No, No, No."

This majority report had given Mrs. Young one of the vice-presidential offices. The minority report of Miss Blake simply proposed nothing, nominating Mrs. Young for President and Mr. Snyder for one of the vice-presidents.

President Joyner ruled that Miss Blake's motion was out of order. Cool Chairman A. F. Downing of New York rose and began to speak for the majority report. Cries of "No, no no!" came from women all over the hall.

R. M. Hitch of Chicago: "Mrs. Young respectfully withdraws from the nomination of vice-president."

This signal of open warfare brought more cheers.

Miss Blake rose again and said with vim:

"Again I move substitution of the minority report."

She was immediately seconded by Miss Isabella A. Evans of New York.

With the very opening of the meeting Albert E. Winship of Boston attacked the men of the committee for the refusal to openly support Mrs. Young. He asserted that if they were not careful they would turn the great gathering into a "noble tragedy" that they would quit down here in confusion and that the women upon their very heads if they persisted in disobedience. He warned them that the teachers would organize throughout the country and leave.

No sooner was the meeting called to order than Prince O. Hale, superintendent of instruction for the State of Illinois, gained the floor and placed in nomination the name of Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of the schools of Chicago.

In making the nomination he said: "Would that I could express the pleasure

20,000 JEWS DRIVEN OUT BY RUSSIA

VIENNA, July 7.—The Semitic leaders of Vienna have received advices from Russia declaring that the expulsion of Jews from cities without the pale is being pushed with terrible ferocity, the victims receiving brutal treatment at the hands of the Russian authorities. The Russian government, with a strict censorship, has succeeded in concealing the facts, the truth being obtainable only by courier and cipher letters. The situation is unprecedented save for the scenes of five years ago when the government supervised wanton slaughter.

It is estimated here that fully 20,000 men, women and children have been torn from their homes and driven like cattle from the proscribed territory, most of them penniless and subjected to terrible hardships. The full story of the horrors of this forced exodus may never be known, but Viennese Jews charge that the expulsion has been responsible directly or indirectly for the death of fully 250 men, women and children. The reports from Kief are that nearly all the Jews resident there illegally have been forced out, but the expulsion continues at other points.

The brutality of the authorities at Moscow has aroused the protest of many influential Christians, but the work has continued unabated. The cities in the pale are crowded with refugees.

The emigration to America is increasing, and it is said that thousands, stirred with sympathy, will go from the pale to the United States, besides those who have suffered in the movement of the last few weeks.

BROOKLINE SOCIETY GIRL PAYS AUTO FINE

Miss Alice Sargent of Chestnut place, Brookline, one of the leading members of the younger society set, was fined $10 by Judge Brown in Malden District Court for speeding her automobile thirty miles an hour on Revere Beach Parkway on June 24. Miss Sargent came to court in her racing car, driving it herself though she was accompanied by a chauffeur. She wore a blue suit and picture hat. She conducted her own case. When her name was called she rose and said clearly: "I wish to plead guilty." When the fine was pronounced Miss Sargent opened her handbag and produced a big roll of bills from which she took $10 to pay the fine.

CATERPILLARS RAID WASHINGTON TREES

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Shade trees of Washington, famed for their number and beauty, are undergoing an attack from a horde of caterpillars. The trees are being stripped of their foliage rapidly. Property owners have joined in the attempt to repel the invaders, but it seems there is little chance to prevail against them. Fear for the very lives of the trees is expressed.

SIX GOVERNORS JOIN FIGHT ON RENO PICTURES

The Epworth League of the Methodist Episcopal Church to-day joined with the United Society of Christian Endeavor in a country-wide campaign to prevent the public exhibition of the moving pictures of the Jeffries-Johnson prize fight.

Six more Governors of States to-day wired Secretary William Shaw of the Christian Endeavor Society their approval of the effort to prevent the pictures of the fight being shown.

When the National Board of Control of the Epworth League resumed its sessions in the People's Temple, Berkeley street and Columbus avenue, Bishop William A. Quayle of Oklahoma City, presiding, concerted action with the Christian Endeavor Society was taken unanimously and without debate.

Rev. C. L. Nye of Iowa offered the following motion which passed at once:

"The Board of Control of the Epworth League heartily sympathizes with the efforts being made by the Christian Endeavor Society to suppress the showing of the motion pictures of the Jeffries-Johnson fight."

The telegrams which Secretary Shaw today received from the Governors in relation to their taking action to prevent the exhibition of the fight pictures follow:

Governor M. R. Marshall of Indiana telegraphed:

"Jurisdiction exclusively with Mayors and police departments. Have publicly expressed disapproval of exhibition."

Governor B. B. Comer of Alabama wired: "I will take pleasure in recommending the prohibition of exhibitions of prize fights in moving pictures."

Governor Fred M. Warner of Michigan replied:

"Legal department of Michigan holds that moving picture shows not prohibited by State laws can be suppressed, if necessary, by Mayors and chiefs of police under city ordinances."

Governor Edwin L. Morris of Montana sent this message:

"Laws of Montana do not seem sufficient to specific to prevent exhibition of prize fight pictures. I believe such exhibition will serve no useful purpose and may, in many instances, produce harmful results. I should be glad to know such pictures were not to be shown in this State."

SOUTH END GROUNDS, Boston, July 7.—Such a fine bill as two games with the Giants as the headliners in the sport sent the fans scurrying to the grounds, as the Doves had put up some good arguments with McGraw's men and the result of the double-header decided the real winner of the series, for it stood even up till the teams finished the long string.

The Doves were making their farewell to the home field to begin a long Western tour and a couple of prizes looked good to them before they got on the hike, while two wins for the Giants would put them on an even footing with the Cub leaders in the race if the latter team fell down before the Reds.

Both teams were on their toes to hurry the games along in order to catch the train westward as soon as the curtain rang down and there were not many breathing spells that they got going after the victories.

McGraw was crazy to land all the points and watched proceedings with an eagle eye. There was no falling off in the pace as long as the bristling leader was in command.

The fans figured on a chance for the Doves with Mathewson out of the way, as the rest of McGraw's pitching staff did not look hard to reach.

BOY RESCUES COMRADE.

SWAMPSCOTT, July 7.—Prompt action on the part of Coleman Ryan, twelve years old, of No. 49 Pine street, undoubtedly saved Leonard Congdon, thirteen-year-old son of School Committeeman S. Perry Congdon of Thomas road, from drowning near Downs Rock to-day. Congdon ventured out too far. Ryan brought him ashore.

SAY JAPAN PLANS WAR WITH U. S.

From To-day's New York Sun.

PARIS, July 6.—The French political world is anxiously watching the trend of the Russian and Japanese movements in the Far East. It is considered certain that the two Powers have drawn up and signed a secret treaty.

The news that the convention concerning Manchuria, which was said to have been postponed until August for signature, is believed to have been a mere blind, and it is further believed that a definite and well laid out treaty has been signed.

A question arises as to whether a secret treaty assures Russia of the status quo in the event of a conflict between America and Japan.

A WARNING FROM WILLIAM R. HEARST

From El Imparcial, Mexico, Thursday, March 31, 1910.

"I have the firm conviction that Japan is arming herself cautiously to attack the United States, and that within a few years the world will witness one of the most terrible wars for commercial predominance."

These were the words of William Randolph Hearst, multi-millionaire and great newspaper man, when a reporter of El Imparcial showed him the cable dispatches which told of the capture of several Japanese spies in the Philippine Islands.

JAPAN ARMING HERSELF.

Mr. Hearst spoke with an air of profound sincerity, and, enlarging upon his first declaration, said:

"The United States does not look for war. The American people are opposed to armed quarrels, but if one is forced they will be ready to answer the call of patriotism.

"That Japan has been arming herself since the end of the Russo-Japanese War can be said with perfect truth. She has not only enlarged her navy, but has increased her military service since that war. Instead of diminishing it by disbanding her armies, as is the custom for nations in time of peace.

"Japan has steadily and rapidly increased her armed forces. This means, evidently, that Japan is making preparation for an extraordinary struggle, and that struggle can only mean a war with the United States. Japan wants the Philippines.

"In my opinion," continued Mr. Hearst, "Japan desires to acquire possession of the Philippine Islands, and also the Island of Hawaii. The attitude of this Oriental country can be explained in no other way. It is notable that the expression, 'Asia for the Asiatics,' has been growing and is strikingly on the increase in the island nation.

Wants to Expand.

"The Philippines, on account of their territorial extension and their proximity to Japan, constitute a coveted country. The Hawaiian Islands, though small and of little agricultural development, nevertheless make a fine base for operations in Pacific Ocean.

"Japan has a strong people, anxious for martial and commercial adventure. She needs expansion, because her territory is already insufficient, and the demands of foreign commerce call for the development to obtain territorial expansion.

"The Philippine Islands furnish little or nothing to the United States, but, on the contrary, by reason of the huge appropriate large amounts for the support of the local administration of the Islands, and for the development of modern and civilizing ideas.

"However, it may be understood that the United States will not permit Japan to acquire those islands. The fact that they form a part of our possessions settles the matter at once and forever, and before giving up the Philippine Islands the United States would, of course, engage in war.

A Partisan for Peace.

"This forms a part of my campaign," said Mr. Hearst. "I am a great partisan of peace, and through my newspapers I am working for the establishment of a supreme tribunal of arbitration, that may enlarge upon that of The Hague, and be of greater strength and justice.

"The United States has recently increased its navy and will continue augmenting other powerful units of navy warfare. This does not mean that the United States has belligerent intentions. If other nations make their navies stronger, the United States must do the same, looking for self-protection."

Afterward Mr. Hearst spoke about the necessity of the United States building the Panama Canal, and said that the reports are false which suggested a failure in the work of cutting through the Isthmus. He said the canal must be finished by 1915, and that the work done up to the present time is a complete success.

Mr. Hearst and his party made a call on the President of the republic, General Don Porfirio Diaz, yesterday morning, and talked to him for a few minutes in the most cordial manner.

The conditions in the Orient and the activities of Japan emphasize the general necessity for increasing the American navy."

The celebrated North American newspaper man, leader of a great part of the public opinion of the neighboring country, stopped talking for a moment, stirred a number of papers that were on the table, and showed to the reporter a copy of the New York American. That paper was profuse in editorials and reports on the necessity of pacification of the world and the disarmament of nations.

TWO WOMEN SHOT BY NEW BEDFORD MAN

NEW BEDFORD, July 7.—Two women were shot on the street here to-day by a rejected suitor, Manuel Rose Montero, now a fugitive.

The women are Mrs. Senna Lopes and her daughter, Miss Matilda Gomes. Both live at No. 29 Union street in the brava colony. The man who shot them also came from the Cape Verde Islands.

After firing at the women, Montero fled, and, it is believed, boarded a car for Taunton. A man answering his description was taken into custody at North Lakeville and was brought here for identification.

Montero has been paying attention to Miss Gomes for some time, but her mother did not like him, and he was repulsed by the girl. Mother and daughter work in a cordage mill. This morning Montero was lying in wait for them on Water street. When they met him he asked:

"Why won't Matilda walk with me?"

"Go away," replied Mrs. Lopes. "We want nothing to do with you."

Montero drew a revolver and shouted: "I'll show you whether you want anything to do with me or not."

He shot Mrs. Lopes through the ear, the bullet penetrating the skull. He shot the girl in the back of the head. Both fell to the sidewalk and a crowd swarmed around them. They are in the Emergency Hospital. It is said that Mrs. Lopes will die and her daughter is in a serious condition.

The man who was taken into custody was found to be suffering from a bullet wound in the head. He said he had been shot before boarding the car by a man named "Tony," who lives in Wareham and works on cranberry bogs. The police think the wound is self-inflicted. The man in custody denies all knowledge of the shooting, but admits knowing the wounded woman.

PLAN SAFE AND SANE EXTENSION

Although gratified with the result of the first test of the Safe and Sane Fourth Movement in this city, Mayor Fitzgerald and members of the Safe and Sane Committee of Boston 1915, are now planning an even safer and saner Fourth for next year. Mayor Fitzgerald says the experiment of last Monday proved conclusively that "shee" meaningless noise was harmful, inappropriate, undignified and uncalled for.

It is the hope of the committee to make the Fourth of July celebration in this city as famous as the Mardi Gras of New Orleans or the carnivals of Venice.

BRITAIN WORRIED BY NEW TREATY

LONDON, July 7.—Diplomatic consternant with the situation in the Far East are behind the conventions between Russia and Japan, announced yesterday at St. Petersburg, a new alignment which threatens the existence of the open door. It is believed the convention there is a secret treaty by which the countries that a few years ago were at war with themselves to dominate the East. This explanation is current and accepted in semi-official circles. The subject is one of great gravity, it was reported to-day, to the British foreign office.

The impression grows here daily that Japan will never sign another treaty with England of the same nature as that now existing. There will also be a marked effect on the negotiations between Japan and America over the new treaty. The most immediate effect of the great alliance, which has been in process of formation quietly for several years, will be felt in the relations between Great Britain and Japan. Our statesman to-day declared that St. Petersburg treaty struck a blow at the British-Japanese alliance, which would probably prove fatal. The growing unpopularity of the alliance, not only among Englishmen in the Far East, but at home in England, can be but increased by the agreement between Tokio and St. Petersburg, which is regarded as nothing short of a conquest for complete domination of the tremendous markets of China and Manchuria.

Will Formally Annex Korea.

The long expected formal annexation of Korea by Japan is now regarded as a matter of a short time. The belief here is that the conditions which have been in gestation since the peace of Portsmouth will soon become known, startling Europe and America.

Japan's aim to recoup the losses of the war with Russia, which still lie heavy on her people, would not be far from realization, were she in a position by a strong alliance with a power with the same aim to throw to the winds her regard for the interference of the nations that stood by the open door policy—to which she subscribed.

The negotiations between St. Petersburg and Tokio, which are understood to have been ready for completion when the prince fell to Harbin and was killed by a Korean, are of especial significance in view of the fact that Japan is about to renew her treaties with the leading powers. London is watching the situation cautiously, particularly with reference to the negotiations for an immigration treaty between the United States and Japan.

Of Great Moment to Britain.

This subject is of extreme importance to Great Britain because of the opposition to Japanese immigration in British Columbia and Australia. Neither the United States nor England wishes to take the initiative in the matter, but as the American treaty does not expire till a year after the expiration of that with Great Britain, the advantage seems to lie with Washington. Our criticism of the Japanese-Russian alliance may be a trifle alliance between England, the United States and Germany.

LETTER CARRIER HELD AS THIEF

Charles P. Symons, thirty years old, a letter carrier at the Essex street station, living in Cambridgeport, was arrested today by United States Deputy Marshal Young charged with stealing letters containing money from the mails. Symons has been a substitute carrier for two years.

Three decoy letters containing marked money were used by Postoffice Inspector Perkins to entrap Symons, only one of which was delivered to its destination. The money placed in the two letters not delivered was found on Symons's person when he was searched at the Essex street station to-day. Symons broke down and admitted stealing from the two letters and also others in the past. He was held in custody for an arraignment before U. S. Commissioner Hayes. The penalty for his offence is imprisonment.

MRS. GOULD TO MARRY THOMAS

NEW YORK, July 7.—Mrs. Helen Kelly Gould, who divorced Frank J. Gould, on May 31, 1909, is to be married on July 15 to Ralph Thomas, a nephew of Washington Thomas, president of the sugar trust, according to a report from a source which has always been found reliable.

The ceremony will not be performed by a Roman Catholic priest, although Mrs. Gould is a member of that church, because of the fact she is a divorcee. The place where the wedding will take place has not been announced, nor has the hour.

Mr. Thomas, it is said, has engaged passage for Europe and will sail as soon as he and Mrs. Gould are married. Their honeymoon will be spent in Europe.

For nearly a year Mr. Thomas has been attentive to Mrs. Gould and there have been repeated reports that they were to be married, but each time the reports have been denied.

BOSTON SURE OF CAVALIERI AT OPERA HERE

NEW YORK, July 7.—Madame Jessie Baskerville, the coach of the Metropolitan Opera House, whose home is in an apartment over the opera house, has arrived in New York on the White Star liner Oceanic.

She came back from her vacation in Paris to superintend the changing of a window which overlooks the Hudson river from her apartment so that she could get better light. She will go right back as soon as the carpenters and masons and plasterers get through.

Miss Baskerville said that she had a mighty good time at the wedding of Sheriff Robert Chanler and Lina Cavalieri, at which she was the only guest except the official witnesses and members of the bride's family. While the prima donna will sing in Boston next Winter, she said, it has not yet been finally arranged that she will sing in New York.

Mary Garden according to Miss Baskerville, has not yet signed a Metropolitan contract, despite reports to the contrary. Miss Garden is holding out for $1,500 a performance, with a guarantee of fifty performances. The opera management is not inclined to promise more than twenty performances.

Emma Eames is reported ready to come back to New York, but has not yet made definite arrangements.

Oscar Hammerstein is not talking as much as he usually does in Paris, Miss Baskerville declared, and when asked about him "His opposition, as is the Americans would say, no longer interferes with him."

It is reported in Paris that the Beecham orchestra and operatic organization which have been playing opera in English in Great Britain will come to the Manhattan Opera House next season. Paris believes that Oscar is aiding and abetting this plan, though not directly, inasmuch as he could not be permitted under his contract with the Metropolitan to take active direction of grand opera.

HOW TO GROW HAIR

A SIMPLE, SAFE AND RELIABLE WAY THAT PRODUCES SURPRISING RESULTS.

NEW DRUG CRYSTOLIS CAUSES BIG STIR AMONG HAIR SPECIALISTS.

$1,000 REWARD IF THEY FAIL

Cut Out Free Coupon Below and Mail To-day.

Those who have become prematurely gray or who are troubled with scurf or dandruff, itching scalp, or falling hair, dandruff, baldness, itching scalp, etc., know full well the humiliation that they cause. There is no need, however, of such conditions. The dandruff germ can be quickly destroyed, the hair roots, the new drug recently discovered at the Creslo Laboratories at Scranton, Pa., and the hair will grow, a little over a year ago, Crystolis has been found to contain marvellous properties in producing a new growth of hair. In subjecting it to various tests in the most rare of cases of baldness, falling hair, etc., the results obtained by the experimenting chemists were unquestionably marvelous. In every case it was found that where there was any hair left Crystolis would produce a new and luxuriant growth of hair in from four to six weeks' time. Gray or faded hair was often restored to its natural color in from 10 to 14 days' time. In many cases of scaly and hard dandruff, and severe cases of itch the troublesome scalp and hair diseases that are becoming so common with the American people. Women who have been forced into wearing false hair will gratefully welcome this wonderful product, as, aside from its many other virtues, it adds a beautiful glow and lustre to the old hair. Besides, it contains no oil, and has a tendency to make the hair curl and fluffy.

The managers of the Creslo Laboratories have such strong faith in Crystolis we have been authorized to make the following remarkable offer: They will forfeit $1,000 in gold if they fail to prove that Crystolis actually grows hair. They will forfeit $1,000 in gold if any one can prove that they were not the first discoverers of Crystolis. They will forfeit $1,000 in gold if it can be proven that it contains any oil, dye or coloring matter of any kind. They further forfeit $1,000 in gold if every testimonial and sworn statement which they publish is not absolutely genuine. Arrangements have been made with the Laboratories to furnish free information in regard to Crystolis to readers of the Boston American readers. Merely cut out and mail the coupon below, and you will receive by return mail particulars of this marvellous new product by return mail.

LINA CAVALIERI, SONGBIRD WON BY OPERA FOLKS HERE

RANGER CADETS WIN PRAISE

The Massachusetts Nautical Training Ship Ranger has left Marseilles for Gibraltar.

While at Lisbon, Commissioner William F. Low received the following letter from Mr. Louis H. Ayme, the American Consul-General at that port: "I take very great pleasure in informing you that to my personal knowledge and from reports brought to this consulate by various Portuguese gentlemen, the conduct of the boys of the vessel under your command while on liberty in this city was such as to elicit the highest praise and commendation. The cleanliness and neatness of their uniforms and the gentlemanly manner in which they behaved was most favorably commented upon. Personally, I am very proud indeed of this fine record of these bright young Americans, and it is a pleasure thought for me that in other ports of Europe they will serve as samples of our young Americans. I sincerely wish them a happy and successful cruise until they return to their homes in Massachusetts."

W. H. O'BRIEN IS OUT FOR THE SENATE

Representative William H. O'Brien, who is the vice-president of the Boston Central Labor Union, is a candidate for the State Senate from the fourth Boston district, in making announcement of his candidacy today Representative O'Brien gives his reasons for not entering the Tenth District congressional contest: "No, you were not inclined to the congressional contest," he said, "the market question, $15,000 on the average, for Democratic nominations in the Tenth District, would bar any man whose limit, under the most favorable circumstances, would be a printing bill of a couple of hundred."

FOUR PERSONS ARE HURT IN COLLISION

NORTH WEYMOUTH, July 7.—Four men were injured and nearly a score more passengers narrowly escaped death or serious injury when an electric car collided with an express wagon at the corner of Neck and Bridge streets. One man was hurled over the front dashboard of the car and struck on his head. He was badly cut and bruised. Three others who were thrown from the running board sustained severe bruises. The car, which was attached to the express wagon was badly damaged, and the other car was so badly injured that it had to be shot.

ROCKEFELLER IS 3-SCORE AND 11

CLEVELAND, July 7.—John D. Rockefeller arrived in Cleveland and entered the gates of Forest Hill, his big summer place, without his presence in the city being generally known.

Plans for the celebration to-morrow of the birthday of Mr. Rockefeller—he was 71 on July 8—are still for only an informal gathering of close friends.

Only three other Sunday papers in the entire United States equal the circulation of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN. Circulation books of the SUNDAY AMERICAN open to all.

KIDNAPED BOY FOUND, MOTHER UNDER ARREST

NEW YORK, July 7.—Joseph McArot, Jr., the small boy kidnaped Monday, is again at home to-day having been recovered after a chase covering fifty-four hours by his father, Joseph McArot, of No. 1468 Southern boulevard, and Detectives Meadrews and Clark, of the Bronx Bureau.

The boy was picked up at Fourth avenue and Thirty-seventh street in company with his mother, Mrs. Mabel McArot, and Joseph Slater, janitor of the apartment, No. 446 Thirty-seventh street, Brooklyn. They were arrested, charged with being responsible for the boy's disappearance and detention.

Mr. and Mrs McArot are separated and when the boy was reported missing Mr. McArot thought his wife had stolen him. He visited her and she feigned such surprise and seemed so naturally grieved that Mr. McArot concluded she knew nothing of the circumstances.

Mrs. Nellie McDonald of No. 1157 Jennings street, told the boy's father that she saw the man and the boy and gave him into the keeping of a woman in white. The description of the woman, although rather vague, made Mr. McArot suspicious of his wife, and he went to see her a second time.

Mrs. McArot, who is only twenty-four, told her story of her mother, in Manhattan, and Mr. McArot and detectives began a search for her. They learned the name of a restaurant in which she is engaged as waitress and from there followed her to Brooklyn.

Next long after they took up a position near a house she was seen to enter a young man talking with the description of the one who is said to have had the boy. Mr. walked along the street and entered the house unnoticed.

They waited until after dark when they saw Mrs. McArot, the young man and the missing boy emerge from the house. The men followed them to Fourth avenue, where Mrs. McArot and her companion were arrested.

BAG OF GEMS IS FOUND IN BERKSHIRES

LEE, Mass., July 7.—Mrs. Harry S. Lake of No. 27 East Seventy-sixth street, New York, started last week on a motor trip in the Berkshires with her husband. She carried in a bag a necklace, coronet, rings and bracelets. When the automobile arrived at Hotel Aspinwall, the bag was missing. Thomas Conroy, a chauffeur, found the bag in the grass near the Hotel. He went to New York to-day and returned the jewels to claim the reward.

"LOST" WORCESTER GIRL ON A LARK

WORCESTER, July 7.—Eleanor Lachapelle, fourteen-year-old daughter of Mrs. Odile Lachapelle, who disappeared from her home Saturday, causing a sensation by her story told to her sister, is safe and has been found. Her story was she had been enticed away from her home by a mysterious man, disguised as a woman, who had forced his entrance into her home. The girl was found at the home of Mrs. Ernest V. Melville, No. 1288 Sabine street, Providence.

DRIVER HURT AS HORSE RUNS AWAY

Taking fright at the approach of a Union Freight Railway locomotive on Commercial street early to-day, a horse attached to the wagon of Thomas Walker, twenty-one, of No. 718 Broadway, Everett, ran through that thoroughfare for a part of North street, driving Walker out. He was taken to the Relief Hospital, suffering from a fractured thigh. The runaway was stopped by citizens at Main street and the wagon was found to be badly damaged.

PINCHOT IS BLAMED FOR LUMBER TARIFF

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 7.—Gifford Pinchot was right when he said that Gifford Pinchot was the man who kept lumber off the free list," said Congressman Jones A. Tawney to-day. "I know that lumber was on the free list in the Payne-Aldrich bill, and that was the work of the time the bill was reported to the House. Until that time Mr. Pinchot had been advocating free lumber. About that time he wrote a letter to the committee favoring a tariff on lumber."

TOOK LIFE WHEN FARM HAD TO GO

NEW YORK, July 7.—Realizing that the home and farm of sixty-five acres that he and his wife had striven for all their lives would have to be sold, James Harrison Vreeland, seventy-three years old, went to the front room of his home in Bloomingdale and committed suicide by shooting himself through the left temple, Death, according to County Physician Ira Robert Armstrong, who afterward viewed the body, was instantaneous.

LODGE BLAMED BY M'CARTHY FOR REJECTION

Jeremiah J. McCarthy, surveyor of the port of Boston and one of the most influential Republicans in Massachusetts, declared today that Senator Henry Cabot Lodge fought the confirmation as commissioner and that the Civil Service Commission failed to confirm him because of Lodge influence.

He intimated this in a statement made after the executive council had refused to take up his charges against the Civil Service Board, and he declared that he had said he would do all he could to defeat Governor Draper for renomination.

In another long statement bearing on election to the United States Senate, interfering with appointments in the surveyor's office, McCarthy said:

Accuses Commissioners.

"If the herding I solved of the executive council had been given, it would have been shown that was absolutely no investigation by the Civil Service Commission as regards my appointment. Therefore, the statute was complied with, requires that the Civil Service Commission should immediately make a careful inquiry, not on account of the circumstances which exist today, and the Governor himself, caused by his interference with my appointment in my office, and as my superiors, there is nothing further for me to say in the matter. His only excuse for delay in getting to me was caused by refusing to act as to the action of the Civil Service Commission in my case. I have the utmost confidence that the Governor and Council and Service Commission in this case will not be guilty of any misconduct in withholding information was unlawfully caused to be withheld from me.

Surprised at Appointment.

"I was not a candidate for any office under Marcus Morton, and the leadership of the appointment was not mine. I have no desire to seek office, nor have I ever asked for it, and it was against my personal wishes that I was urged to accept the appointment I now hold. I am in accord with the new movement and am ready to stand by my principles of the Republican party, and I am willing to do all in my power to defeat the man who has refused to act in the matter of my appointment, and who has caused me to be humiliated before my friends, and who has caused me to be humiliated before my friends, and who has caused me to be humiliated before my friends

BUSINESS MEN KEEN TO GO ON HARBOR TOUR

The extent of public interest in the harbor line at East Boston and in the location of the new immigrant station, about which Secretary Nagel and Congressman Keliher are now in communication with the Chamber of Commerce, is being shown by the eagerness of members of the chamber to take part in the trip of inspection of the harbor next Tuesday. A special steamer, the commodious Maine 1000 has been chartered, and, although the announcement of the trip was only made Saturday, several hundred business men have already insisted to secure themselves of a place on the boat.

Some of the chief points of interest on the trip will be Commonwealth Pier, where the fish industry is to be located, and where the State is to spend $1,000,000 in improvements; the East Boston waterfront, where the State is to spend $3,000,000 more; the direction of the new harbor line running from Jeffries Point, which was advocated by the chamber and adopted by this year's Legislature; the Boston & Albany terminals at East Boston, where are the largest piers on the Atlantic coast; the Cunard, the Boston & Maine docks, Charlestown Navy Yard, the Mystic River, the Ports, Broad sound channel, the Graves, Boston Light, Nix's and Peddock's Island and Wolf's River.

A pamphlet is to be issued by the Chamber containing, besides the itinerary, an extensive list of the features of the waterfront of the harbor and the following summing-up of its advantages:

Boston, New England's port—is one hundred and fifty miles nearer to Europe than any port south of New York.

Boston has fifty miles of water front—less than one-half of it developed for commercial purposes.

Boston has, besides the East Boston and City wharves, Fort Point Channel, spanned by seven bridges, navigable for vessels of 1,000 tons' carrying capacity, and Chelsea Creek, a tidal estuary, navigable for vessels of 1,000 tons' carrying capacity, suitable for the location of industries the Mystic, Inner and Outer Harbors, and the Charles and Mystic Rivers.

Boston has the old harbor and Dorchester Bay, with unlimited possibilities for development.

Boston has the only harbor in the world with an East Boston, a great expanse of flats which, rather than be covered with water, can be filled in and made ready for industrial sites, for docking a channel, at far less expense than formerly.

Boston has three entrances—the old ship channel thirty-seven feet; the new Broad Sound channel thirty feet deep, 1,200 feet wide, and the new channel thirty-five feet.

The steamer will arrive at Nantasket at 8:30, when dinner will be served at the Palm Garden in Paragon Park, and the return trip will be made at 8:30 coming direct to Boston.

After the dinner at Nantasket there will be five-minute speeches by some of the guests who will include Mayor Lodge, Governor Draper, Mayor Fitzgerald, Congressman Keliher, Congressman Lawrence, President Bothwell of the chamber, and Admiral Francis T. Bowles of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company.

MUSICALES AT SHORE HOMES FOR SMART SET

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

Most important of all the diversions planned for the North Shore colony this Summer is Mrs. Hall McAllister's series of musicales, which will be given at the homes of the fashionables in the Summer colony. Mrs. Washington B. Thomas will be the first to open her home and the initial musicale will be given at her Pride's Crossing villa on July 15. The Thomas home has one of the largest and most beautiful music rooms of any Summer home in the country.

Mrs. T. Jefferson Coolidge, Jr., will open her Manchester home on July 29 for the second musicale, and Mrs. Gardner Ames her home at Pride's Crossing on August 12.

Among the artists who will be heard at these musicales are: Miss Margaret and Miss Anita Davis-Chase, sopranos; Miss Margaret Keyes, contralto; Miss Edith Altemus, pianist; Miss Nina Fletcher, violinist; Hall McAllister and Frederic Rogers, baritones, and Otto Roth, violinist.

—Mrs. McAllister is spending the Summer at Edgehill, Nahant.

Mrs. Nathan Matthews of Beacon street, and her mother, Mrs. L. M. Sargent, are at their Bar Harbor villa, Highfields, for the season. Mr. Matthews has gone aboard to join his daughter, Miss Nathalie Matthews, who is in Paris. Another recent addition to the select little colony of Bostonians at Bar Harbor is Mrs. Alanson Tucker, who spent some time at the Somerset after returning from Europe, and who is now at her estate, Les Fox, at the Harbor.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stow Bradley of Commonwealth avenue, who have been touring through the West the past several weeks are now at their Summer home at Pride's Crossing. Their two interesting daughters, Miss Rosamond and Miss Leslie are among the popular members of the younger set there.

Miss Alice Farnsworth, who spends her winters at the Vendome, is visiting friends in Manchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Clement S. Houghton of Chestnut Hill, who last year deserted the North Shore to spend the season in New York State, are now at their Manchester Summer home, where they will remain until late in the Autumn.

The Sherman Whipples are at their Summer home, Elmcroft, Wareham.

Mrs. Lucius Manlius Sargent has closed her town house and is at her Campello cottage, "Kaloola-imoo-qua." Her daughter, Miss Louisa Wells, who is one of our most expert tennis and golf players and who is at present in Europe is expected home this month.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Burrage of Commonwealth avenue, whose son, Francis H. Burrage, graduated from Harvard the past month and was one of the Hasty Pudding Club hosts on Class Day, have sailed to spend the Summer in Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Whitney, who spent the early season at their fine estate at Cohasset, are now at Bar Harbor for the Summer. Their pretty debutante daughter, Miss Josephine Whitney, is enjoying immensely her first season at this fashionable resort.

The Misses Sally and Mary Woodberry of Chestnut street, Ary at East Jaffrey, N. H., for the summer. Their aunt, Miss Robinson, with whom they make their home, has gone aboard.

Mrs. Roland Worthington and her daughter, Miss Theoda Worthington, have gone from their Dedham estate to their cottage at Hyannisport. Their neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Harry V. Conant and family, are at Sea View for the Summer.

Mrs. Edgar Harding and her sister, Miss Robinson, have sailed for Europe, where they will be guests of the former's daughter, formerly Priscilla Harding, who early in February married James Sherrard of the British army. The ceremony took place at Emmanuel Church and was one of the largest and most brilliant of the year. The Sherrards are now in London.

CAPTAIN WHO IS TO COMMAND BIG NEW Bbattleship

CAPTAIN ALBERT GLEAVES.

GLEAVES TAKES NORTH DAKOTA

Captain Albert Gleaves is expected to report at the Charlestown Navy Yard within the next few days to take command of the Dreadnought battleship North Dakota, now being completed in dry dock at the yard. He will be the first naval officer to take command at sea of one of the Dreadnoughts of the American Navy, as the Florida, Delaware, and others of the giant fighting machines will not be ready for many months.

The new captain of the big battleship will succeed Commodore Richard T. Mulligan, retired. Captain Gleaves is now a member of the General Board of the Navy, which is presided over by Admiral Dewey. This alone tells of the regard for his abilities in which he is held by the Navy Department. Captain Gleaves is also Naval aide to Assistant Secretary of the Navy Winthrop. He commanded the cruiser St. Louis, the President's yacht Mayflower and other vessels in the service before going to Washington for Department duty.

Captain Gleaves was born in Tennessee and has served in the navy thirty-seven years.

DYNAMITE LURKS FOR HARRIMAN AUTO

GOSHEN, N. Y., July 7.—A dynamite cartridge hanging from the limb of a tree at a height where a covered automobile would strike and probably explode it, was found suspended by a length of twine above the road by Chief Hilt Harriman automobiles pass from Arden House to the station, and to Arden Farms.

The late E. H. Harriman, his wife and daughters have always been popular in Orange County, and there is no explanation offered.

REVERE DOCTOR, DESPITE WIFE, WOUNDS SELF

Dr. Charles C. Partridge made an unsuccessful attempt at suicide by cutting his throat with a knife and stabbing himself in the left breast, at his home on Mountain avenue, Revere. Mental trouble, brought on by the heat, is given as the cause of his endeavor to end his life.

Screams of Mrs. Partridge reached the ears of Representative Samuel A. Segre and Merton D. Williams, who were standing on the opposite side of the street. The men rushed into the house and found Mrs. Partridge struggling with her husband in the bathroom for the possession of a knife. Both were covered with blood.

The two neighbors got possession of the knife, and Dr. Partridge fainted.

Dr. William C. Newton reached the house very soon after, and it was found that the wounds of the would-be suicide were not necessarily fatal.

He had a gash on the right side of his neck, which did not quite reach the jugular vein, and the knife wound in the breast also escaped a vital part.

The injured man was taken to the Frost Hospital.

Dr. Partridge formerly resided in Belmont, and had retired from practice.

TWO FARO MEN READY TO AID STATE, IS RUMOR

Two members of the faro bank gang that fleeced George W. Coleman of thousands of dollars are ready to turn State's evidence, according to rumors about the Federal building today. It is reported that the men are the two who started Coleman against the faro game. It is also reported that after Coleman had dropped $20,000 they became frightened, asked Coleman if he was stealing the funds of the National City Bank of Cambridge, of which he was bookkeeper, and when he denied this, secured a written statement from him to the effect that he received the money through a legacy.

The two fare men, according to the story, then introduced Coleman to William (Big Bill) Kelliher and Merrill J. Walsh. It is said that Kelliher and Walsh were to divide with the other two whatever was secured from Coleman. Coleman, it is declared, dropped $25,000 to Walsh and Kelliher, but they failed to turn over any part of it to the men who introduced Coleman.

Another rumor at the Federal building is to the effect that two of the faro gang were made to believe that a signed statement from Coleman to the effect that he was losing his own money and not that of the bank would save them from prosecution, and that they produced such a paper, to which Coleman's name had been forged. According to this story, the Government's next move will be to prosecute the two gamblers for forgery.

AVIATORS QUICK TO ENTER 1,000 MILE CONTEST

NEW YORK, July 7.—The publication in the Times of the conditions of the aeroplane race from Chicago to New York for the $25,000 purse offered by the New York Times and the Chicago Evening Post, brought forth the promised entries of Charles K. Hamilton and Glenn H. Curtiss or a representative. Clifford D. Harmon is seriously considering the question of starting in the contest, provided some way is found for him to retain his amateur standing.

Some time ago, when announcement was first made of the $25,000 prize, Wilbur Wright said that a representative of the Wright company was almost certain to be found on the starting line.

The officers of the aero clubs of America in charge of the international aviation meet to be held at Garden City, commencing October 15, intimated that additional prizes would be offered to the Chicago-New York aeronaut to land at the International field after arriving at New York. From every side came commendation of the efforts of the newspapers concerned to promote the art of aviation by the proffer of the $25,000 prize.

SCHOOL HEAD SCORES COLLEGE TEACHING

"There is no spectacle in American life today more pitiful than the contrast between what the college advertises to do and what it performs. Its professors are helpless, unable and unwilling to force serious attention from their students, but serving as an excuse for congregating thousands of young men absorbed in puerile and trivial interests. The teaching by our college professors is the poorest in the country, but there is an attitude of superstitious awe and reverence toward these institutions which makes it dubious to question them."
—William McAndrew, a New York high school principal, in address to teachers.

AUTO TOO MUCH FOR THE ABERNATHY BOYS

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 7.—Unable to handle an automobile as well as he can a bucking broncho, Lewis Abernathy, aged ten, ran down his seven-year-old brother, Temple, on their arrival here after completing the first day's run of their homeward journey to Oklahoma, whence they came on horseback to New York. Temple was alighting from his father's car in front of the Nelson House when Louis, following closely in a second car, could not check his machine and it ran up on the sidewalk. It knocked down little Temple, who fell under the machine.

GIRL SWIMS FIVE MILES

Declaring that she would rather drown than quit, Miss Rose Pitenof, fifteen daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ell Pitenof of No. 326 Freeport street, Dorchester, swam from the extremity of Commercial Point to Deer Island light, a distance of five miles.

The trip was made in the remarkable time of three hours and fifteen minutes.

Once on her long and perilous journey the girl was bidden for nearly a minute in the wash of the big steamer South Shore of the Nantasket line, and an effort was made to induce her to give up, but she refused.

"I'll drown first," was the only answer she would make to pleadings. "I'll never give up now."

Her father, Ell Pitenof, with George De Cost of the Boston Bath Department, who trained her for the event, and John Anderson, one of the best-known swimmers of the city, accompanied her in a rowboat.

REVERE SELECTMEN OUST POLICE CHIEF

The Board of Selectmen of Revere removed Chief of Police William A. McNeill from office on a vote of three to two, the Republican members of the board, Messrs. Acker and Myer, voting in the negative.

This action is regarded in the town as a political move. Mr. McNeill has been active in making Republican results in the town section of the town. He was formerly chief of police of Winthrop. Lieutenant Chaney is acting as chief of police for the present.

Health and Beauty Talks

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN

A. W. A.: You say you can find nothing that will protect tender skin from the sun. Try this and I know you will not suffer from sunburn, tan or freckles: Dissolve four ounces of spermax in one-half pint hot water and add two teaspoonfuls of ox-ine. Apply this, with the palm of the hand, to the face, neck and forearms in the morning and you will find it will rub off as fine dust, like powder. It is a true complexion beautifier, for it restores and preserves the soft and rosy color of youth. This inexpensive lotion is especially fine for those who have dark, sallow or oily skin.

S. L. J.: Very few women are blessed with eyes that are naturally "beaming and radiant." Most probably those dazzling eyes you envy are the result of using a tonic to strengthen and brighten the eyes. Get from your druggist one ounce of cryvite and dissolve it in a pint of water and you will have a perfect home-made eye tonic. Use one or two drops in each eye to relieve inflammation, dullness, redness and soreness. It will not smart or burn. Many persons with weak eyesight find they can dispense with eyeglasses after using this tonic daily a month or two.

G. L. M.: "Shampoo" is a word of Hindoo origin and means "to lather, rub and wash the head." When using canthrox for shampooing, dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water; pour on the head a little at a time and rub well—just as you would with an ordinary shampoo; then rinse the hair and scalp thoroughly with warm water. Canthrox makes an abundance of lather and will remove that fine scurf of which you complain, for it is nothing more nor less than dandruff. People use soap when shampooing, for it leaves the scalp hot and hard and causes streaks in the hair when drying. When you use canthrox the hair dries quickly and is soft, bright, fluffy and not streaky.

Cairis: Have you tried to preserve your youthful looks? Is your husband correct when he says you do not look as young as you should? If you want to keep your skin clear, fresh and velvety, you must take care of it. Use simonds cream jelly both as a massage and face cream and your complexion will be fine and free from blemish. Get from your druggist one ounce of almozoin, dissolve it in one-half pint cold water; add two teaspoonfuls of glycerine; stir well and let stand over night. Then you have a cream that contains no oils or fats to make hair grow or cause the skin to become dark and greasy looking. As a treatment for blackheads it is effective and at the same time "mild as milk," for it completely removes the pore-dirt and dangerous fine size of the pores, so that the blackheads will not return. Massaging with this almozoin cream prevents roughness, removes wrinkles and keeps the flesh firm and plump.

E. S. F.: You will not need to worry about your hair coming out when you comb it if you will quit experimenting with ready-prepared hair tonics. You need only to use a good quinine tonic two or three times a week. You can prepare this at home by dissolving an ounce of quinoin in one-half pint of alcohol, then adding a half pint of water. Rub this tonic thoroughly into the scalp and it will stop your hair coming out and remove the dandruff entirely. I find it excellent for excessively oily, dull or brittle hair. It is the only dependable remedy I have ever found for hair and scalp troubles and will be found very invigorating.

A. B. C.: You are right when you say no powder or cosmetic will help your complexion while your blood is out of order. Good health is the foundation of a good complexion. This tonic is fine for those who are thin and sallow: Dissolve one-half cup of sugar and one ounce of karmelene in one-half pint of alcohol, then add enough hot water to make a full quart and you will have a sufficient supply of dependable home-made system tonic that will tone up your system and build up your strength. Kardene aids digestion, arouses a torpid liver and purifies the blood. It will clear your complexion of sallowness and pimples and give a charming comeliness that is denied when you are so "run down." You can purchase kardene from any first-class druggist.

Alice: It is useless to fret and worry and feel utterly wretched just because you are "becoming too fat to be graceful." If you will get from your druggist four ounces of parsnets and dissolve it in 1½ pints of hot water and take a tablespoonful of this harmless flesh reducer before each meal you soon will be satisfied that, while you may not regain your former slim and elegant figure, you will not be so stout as to feel constantly chagrined in society or business.

Carmen: Those tormenting and distressing hairs on your forearms and face will disappear if you will apply a paste made by adding a little water with delatone. Apply it and allow it to remain for two or three minutes, then wipe off and wash with warm water. Delatone is expensive and retails for one dollar an ounce, but one ounce is enough for two or three applications—and that is all you will ever need. Even should the hair return after the first application, it will be thin and light colored. The second or third application removes it effectively and permanently.

FROM TELEPHONE SCHOOL TO SWITCHBOARD

An Invitation to the N. E. A.

MEMBERS of the National Education Association who are interested in vocational work, and who have the desire to visit our School for Operators and our Main Exchange, are cordially invited to do so. We will be glad to show them our methods and results in the training of telephone operators.

BOSTON is noted, among other things, for the excellence of its telephone service, and the courtesy and intelligence of the force operating it. The underlying reason for this is the careful selection of candidates and the thoroughness with which they are drilled.

THE SCHOOL is at 530 Atlantic Avenue. The course lasts four weeks, during which time the pupil is paid a small salary. Meanwhile she is given a thorough training in switchboard theory and practice.

AFTER being graduated these pupils are assigned to regular positions in exchanges convenient to their homes. The largest of these exchanges is the Main Exchange at 119 Milk Street.

VISITORS will be welcomed at the School or at the Main Exchange. Should a large group decide to come, it is suggested that the Principal of the School for Operators (Fort Hill 7600) be called by telephone, and a like advance notification be given the Manager of the Main Exchange in order that a suitable escort may be provided.

FAST BOATS WILL COMPETE TO-DAY IN NEW YORK RACES

LANGFORD ACCEPTS TERMS TO MEET JACK JOHNSON IN BATTLE

SAN FRANCISCO, July 7.—Sam Langford, Boston's famous tar baby, will not let a $20,000 side bet stand between him and a fight with Jack Johnson, the heavyweight champion.

Joe Woodman, Langford's manager, said to-day, after learning that Johnson is willing to fight Langford if the latter puts up a side bet of $20,000, that Sam would accept the offer so quickly that Johnson would be surprised.

The only condition that Woodman names is that the promoters of the fight between the two colored men guarantee a substantial purse. Woodman is confident Langford can win Johnson's $20,000 without much trouble, and Sam himself does not long have any doubt that Johnson would be easy for him.

There are a lot of sporting men who think now that Langford is the only fighter in sight who can give Johnson a run for the championship title. They would like to see the Boston fighter and Johnson face each other in the ring.

Woodman is trying to arrange a bout for Sam with Kaufman, Johnson's sparring partner. If this cannot be arranged Sam and Woodman will leave on Monday for Chicago. There they will place the money for the Johnson side bet in the hands of a stakeholder. Langford is eager to get at the champion.

WYOMING GOVERNOR BARS FIGHT OF LANGFORD AND NEGRO

CHEYENNE, Wyo., July 7.—"There is no show for the fight here during the Cheyenne Frontier celebration," said Governor Brooks, when told of the talk about a Johnson and Langford match here during the frontier celebration.

"Wyoming laws forbid it and I will see that the laws are enforced. Personally, I am not opposed to the sport and if should enjoy seeing the match, but the law forbids such fights. When I took the oath of office to uphold the laws I meant it."

HIGH BROW VIEW OF JACK JOHNSON BY A COLLEGE PROFESSOR

CHICAGO, July 7.—According to Professor W. L. Hamilton of the University of California, Jack Johnson and James J. Jeffries belong to the same race. Both are sprung from an ape of type four, the Papidia. Professor Hamilton in addressing a class in sociology at Northwestern university declared the negro is not a member of a race apart from the white man, but is a tanned off shoot of the Caucasian. He predicted that the 9,000,000 negroes would be extinct in America through intermarriage and elimination.

The negro has made wonderful progress in the last fifty years and no longer can be called the white man's inferior. The recent prize fight proves this to some extent, he said.

JACK JOHNSON NOW WANTS TO SIT IN AN ALDERMAN'S CHAIR

CHICAGO, July 7.—John Arthur Johnson intends to shy his castor into the political ring in the Third Ward of Chicago.

He believes Alderman Johnson of the Third Ward will sound better than Pugilist Johnson, and will contest the seat in the City Council held by Alderman Milton J. Foreman.

On his return to the city Johnson is not to engage in the saloon business, as has been said. He is to purchase a garage on the South side and open the doors to livery business, keeping his eye meantime on the Council chamber, which he thinks would be graced by his presence.

That is the program, according to Johnson's admirers. The Third Ward has a large colored population, but in the race for Alderman Judge Alderman Foreman, William A. Wallace, a colored baker, ran against Alderman Foreman at the primaries in 1905, but received 112 votes out of 2,018 cast for Foreman. It is said at the time that Wallace was seriously handicapped for lack of funds, and that the votes he received was not representative of the colored element in the ward.

Johnson will not be so handicapped in the present race. That little affair at Reno netted him enough to carry the primaries in the "Black Belt."

There are 3,000 colored voters in the Third Ward now, and Johnson plans only to move into it to help elect Johnson to the City Council.

Politicians admit that if Johnson decides to enter the aldermanic race he is sure of a walkover in the Third Ward. They say it is bold for a man who has been liberal with the negroes, and has done them many favors, but he probably would refuse to make the race against Johnson, knowing the futility of such a contest.

It is also reasonably certain that Johnson will do a thriving business in the automobile livery business.

FIGHT PICTURE WAR MAY BAR JACK HIMSELF

NEW YORK, July 7.—Elated by the rapid spread of the campaign against the moving pictures of the Jeffries-Johnson prize fight, the leaders of the movement against pugilism to-day began the laying of plans for a national campaign for the enactment and enforcement of anti-prize fight laws in every State in the Union.

Since the United Society of Christian Endeavor, under the direction of its general secretary, William Shaw, send out from Boston an appeal against the fight films, twenty-nine cities have effectually put the pictures under the ban and six States have taken or propose to take action to bar the films.

At the same time that the fight on the pictures is being waged from coast to coast, there has been started a strong movement against the appearance of Jack Johnson, the only negro world's heavyweight champion ever seen in the vaudeville stage. Mimsters want him barred in one city—Washington—and others, led by Atlanta have said through their officials "We don't want him here."

Definite word was received to-day that the owners of the films who purchased them from the fighters, giving the promoters of the contest a sixth interest, have determined on a legal battle to an effort to break down the opposition.

Although no definite plans have been announced by the picture men it is understood that the contest will be taken to the federal courts immediately, it being contended that the prohibition is unconstitutional, discriminative and beyond the police powers of municipalities or States.

A man prominent in the moving picture industry to-day said: "First and last, this agitation—if the prohibition is upheld—means a loss of fully $2,000,000 to the moving picture business. The present owners of the films paid the fighters $120,000 for their interests, and that was added to materially by the cost of taking the pictures and preparing them for the market. They are being brought east on a train from Reno.

"The loss to the owning company is estimated by amusement men to be more than $1,000,000 in prospective profits. Of course, with many cities still open to the films, it will not be a dead loss. But there is added to this the loss in picture house projects. At a conservative estimate this would be more than equal to the loss to the owners. It is probable that the picture business, wholesale and retail, will fall to get fully $2,500,000 which it would have taken in if Jeffries had won and had there been no agitation."

JOHNSON HAS VERDICT OVER BEST IN RING

Now that there is an undisputed heavyweight champion of the world, who will be the first man to fight him for the title?

It is beyond question that Jack Johnson stands alone in his class, and among those who are clamoring for a battle with him not one appears to have a possible show.

Al Kaufman, Sam Langford and Tommy Burns are the three men who are prominent in the lowy class right now, and Johnson has beaten them all.

Last battle with Langford at Boston, when Johnson received the decision in forty rounds, dates back to the time Johnson was just blooming. He had just left the coast after defeating George Gardner, Joe Ferguson, Jim McVey, Joe Kennedy and several other lesser lights, and was gaining more confidence with every battle.

Langford Is Better Now.

When Johnson met Langford, Sam was a legitimate welterweight and had beaten everything before him. To-day Langford is a hundred-and-seventy pounder, has a heavier punch and a better knowledge of ring generalship. With the extra weight in his favor Langford thinks he can trim the champion, and is willing to bet $10,000 on the side if Johnson will give him a 157 at it.

Kaufman was so easy for the big colored man in a ten-round bout in Frisco that few give Al a chance in a long fight, although the latter has great confidence in himself and has fond hopes of getting Jack in a bout over the Marathon route. As Tommy Burns had little chance with the champion in their Australian bout, the most dangerous man of the trio is Langford.

Among the other heavyweights who appear to have a look in, providing Johnson retires from active service in a big way, are Sam McVey and "Bill Lang, the Australian who knocked out Jim Flynn and lost a twenty-round de. sic.n to Tommy Burns recently. Then there are Joe Jeannette, the best Jack Johnson has to finish fight in Paris; Jim Jarry, Jim Stewart, Sandy Ferguson, Al Kaufman and a few others who appear to have little chance even with Langford or Burns.

Burns May Be First.

Jeannette, with his wonderful strength and ability to take punishment, may have an outside chance in a finish fight, but until he gets that chance will Tommy believe that Johnson is his master. Burns says he will fight with Johnson that the colored man did not really beat him, although he admits Johnson had the better of the mill up to the time when the referee stopped the fourteenth round, prompted by the reports that his jaw was broken.

To-day Burns is a much heavier man than he was a few years ago, weighing about 190 pounds, but a lot of that is fat and would have to be taken off. Burns would probably weigh between 175 and 180—that is, if he trained to keep there. Even so, Johnson would have at least thirty pounds advantage over him, and the extra weight is bound to tell on the smaller man in a long fight.

However, the prospects of a Burns-Johnson fight is many moons away, and in the meantime any one of the many logical opponent loom up on the pugilistic horizon that are more formidable than any of the heavyweights mentioned above.

NEW YORK YACHT CLUB REGATTA

NEWPORT, R. I.—The sixty-third annual regatta of the New York Yacht Club is sailed to-day over the Brenton's Reef course. Many big schooners and sloops are entered.

In addition to the interest in this regatta there lies in conjunction with the event the racing for the New York Yacht Club cottage cups, offered by James Gordon Bennett in 1874, to be sailed for under the deed of 1905. The race starts at 10:30 a. m. with the usual warning and preparatory guns preceding the start for the L. M and other classes.

The Block Island course of thirty-eight miles will be sailed by schooners, sloops and yawls with a start at Brentons reef, the first turn a mile east of Block Island buoy, then to West Island, the next buoy and the third leg of the course back to Brentons reef.

Cups are offered as prizes, first, second and third. If there are more than three starters in each of the regular, special and handicap classes a fourth prize is the lists.

Commodore Arthur Curtiss James of the New York Yacht Club on board his new flagship, the Aloha, arrived here this morning.

NAVY MEN AT QUINCY Y. C.

The Quincy Yacht Club will to-night have the biggest celebration in its history and will tender a reception to the Argentine Republic naval officials who are in Quincy visiting the Fore River ships and to Rear Admiral Bowles of the Fore River Company.

At the same time the club will formally dedicate its new club house. The old house has been completely remodelled and moved nearer the channel. A large dining room, more locker room, new billiard and pool rooms have been added, and the club now has one of the finest houses to be found anywhere around Massachusetts Bay. New float stages have been built and the club floats are now of easy access at any tide.

The reception will take place at 6:30 o'clock and a banquet will follow, after which the clubhouse will be thrown open to the members and their guests for dancing and the general celebration.

Commodore Robbins and the other officers of the club have worked hard to make this affair the biggest of its kind ever held in Quincy and representatives from many yacht clubs will be present. The interior and exterior of the clubhouse have been decorated for the occasion, flags of the Argentine Republic and the United States flying side by side.

NEW CLASS OF BIKE RIDERS AT REVERE

Some new faces will be seen racing at the Revere track Saturday night in the professional events.

The riders themselves, however, are not strangers to those who have followed the game for the past few seasons. The new class B professional riders, as it is known, is composed of the former crack amateur cyclists of the country. Under a recent ruling of the National Cycle Association it was decided to give ribbons to the winning amateur riders in the future and as this did not appeal to those in the game just as long as they were not fast enough to compete with the old professional riders, a new class was formed.

This class includes such men as Phil Wright, Mortimy de Cormis, Tom Connelly, C. H. Morgan, Teddy Lewis, A. La Montagne and William Bussey and a host of others.

Emler Collins and Jimmy Moran are due to wrestle for honors behind the motors in a 15-mile race and the pick of the professional sprinters will be seen in a half mile handicap and a five-mile event.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., July 7.—Ninety-six golfers handled in cards at the close of the first day's play of the State Golf Tournament here. Medal play was won by the present State champion, Buckingham P. Merriman of Waterbury, with a card of 145. R. S. White, of New Haven, with 152, was second. Team play was won by New Haven with 801.

L TEAM BEATS POLICE.

The baseball team from Division 1, of the Boston Elevated Railway defeated the Policemen's team, at the Dunbar Avenue grounds by the score of 8 to 3.

"OLD CY" YOUNG OPENS FOR NAPS

Cy Young will pitch his 500th game tomorrow when the Cleveland team comes here to play the Red Sox on the Huntington Avenue grounds.

There are two games on the slate and old Cy, the greatest baseball pitcher in major league baseball, will be on the slab in one of the contests, according to the report sent on ahead in advance of the arrival of the Naps.

Think of it, pitching 500 games! But the old man has outlived every other player in the game, as he has been active on the baseball diamond since before the start of Cleveland, and there is no one to dispute him in holding the long-distance record for being in harness as a twirler.

Though forty-two years old Cy is still an athlete, because he has always taken the best care of himself, never allowing the temptations that beset a ball player to sway him from the straight and narrow path.

Usually a ball player ends his days as a star diamond by the time he reaches the thirty-fifth-year-od mark, and that makes Cy a great exception, for he says he will stick as long as his arm holds out, and he is remarkable feature that Cy rarely is troubled with any kinks in his pitcher.

The grand old man of baseball made his greatest achievement in 1904, when he shut out the Athletics in one of the few perfect games played in the history of the sport. In the nine innings he did not allow a hit, run or a base on balls, and as no errors were made behind him, only twenty-seven batters faced him.

WAS JEFF KNOCKED OUT? ASK TEX, HE MAY KNOW

By TAD.

RENO, Nev., July 7.—Men are still betting and arguing over the final decision in the big fight Monday and Tex Rickard's clothes are simply rocked with telegrams asking him to decide wagers.

I found him today in his office looking over the gate receipts. When asked for his decision Tex leaned back and scratched his head. "Look a here" he said, pulling out a mitt full of wires, "How can you decide a man's money away on a wire like this?" It read:

"To decide a bet, was Jeff knocked out, or was he disqualified." Now, you see, both questions are right, and I hate to have a man lose his money on a technicality. That last half minute of the fight was the sweet exciting thing I ever saw and the way Jeffries's handlers tried to get away with it was a little short of highway robbery.

"When Jeff got up after that first knock down, Johnson promptly stepped in again with a left-hand lash on the mouth. Jeffries fell outside the ropes, stopped, with his head hanging inside over the ropes. He was bleeding badly and the men in the press seats were getting blood all over their clothes.

Jeff Disqualified.

"Jeff stayed there until the count of eight. He was dead to the world, and would not have arisen until assisted for fully half a minute. I'm certain of that, but those people and some of his seconds helped him up and stood him on his feet.

"Tommy Ryan was in the ring with Berger helping Jeff up, and I started to walk over, thinking that they were about to put him in his chair. He was disqualified the moment one of his men stepped into the ring, and we feared the thing all over.

"Just as I expected to see him sit down Tim Corbett jumped up and gave Jeff a push down toward the other corner and told him to run. Then, of course, Johnson tore after him again and before he could reach the rope Jeff was knocked down again. Berger and Burns then jumped into the ring and lifted the beaten man into his corner.

On Record as K. O.

"If Jeff had turned around and had knocked Johnson after he started to run away that time I would have given the fight to Jack Johnson.

"It was unnecessary to knock Jeff down that last time. He had lost already. Those who followed his every move knew that he would get away with something, but I read the rules carefully and as far as I can see was in my rights. You see what a tough job it is to decide that not.

"Jeff was knocked out, there is nothing to it. He was helped to a chair, but when his seconds jumped in and tried him up he was disqualified. I don't just know how to call that decision out so those people unless to say that the disqualification saved Jeff from a knockout. It goes on record, however, as a knockout.

"After he had worked that stunt broken for a while, Tex pulled out of his inside coat pocket a bunch of yellow checks and cut to G. L. Rickard. 'Just to show my brave men was there he counted the pot over and added it up to $86,000.

"'That's just my cut of the gate so far,' said Tex with a grin. 'The rest of the gate is in the hands of the ticket sellers. Without a bit of a lie I'm in you that the entire gate was $250,775. We had 15,760 people who paid admission. We figured that 1,500 beat it over the road and 200 had complimentary tickets. We figured that 1,500 beat it over and saw the fight.

"Here's my box office statement right here for the number of tickets sold, just look over and see what you think of it," said Tex. "Now I'm going to be busted over the sheet. It read: 1,258 tickets at $50, 150 at $40, 611 at $30, 1,000 at $25, 1,457 at $20, 1,700 at $15, 9,050 at $10.

"If we held that fight in Frisco we would have had a $700,000 gate if we had a cent. Why, when the fight was called off there was $400,000 up in the local already, and that was week before the date at all. You said everything went off so nicely. There was plenty room in the arena, and never once was there a sign of a fight.

Here is one that is going the rounds: Oregon Jones, a black and proper, lost a leg. It was amputated at the knee. But Jones is not to be done for. He prays left footed, and when he goes out he discards his artificial leg and goes on crutch. He engages in his position, and at the crack of the ball grabs his crutch and hobbles in the direction of the sphere. He can travel as rapidly with his crutch as he could before he was injured, and when he gets set for the ball drops the crutch and makes the catch." Unless sue, doesn't it?

Down in Pittsburg they have finally discovered what put the flubs on the Pirates. It was the pennant raising. It will be remembered that the National League pennant was raised inside down, and Clarke, Wagner and other boys held ever since that they were hoodooed.

MORAN DENIES RELEASE STORY

Umpire Moran of the National League says there is no truth to the story that President Lynch of the National League has decided to reinstate him at once.

"Why," said Moran, "I haven't even had a cross word with President Lynch this year. He has not said anything to me or given me any intimation that he has any intention of writing me in.

"Last Saturday, upon leaving New York, I received my assignment as usual. I have been doubled up with Johnstone all through the year, and am working every playing day with him now. I have had no trouble with any team this year."

Here is one that is going the rounds: Oregon Jones, a black and proper, lost a leg. It was amputated at the knee. But Jones is not to be done for. He prays left footed, and when he goes out he discards his artificial leg and goes on crutch. He engages in his position, and at the crack of the ball grabs his crutch and hobbles in the direction of the sphere. He can travel as rapidly with his crutch as he could before he was injured, and when he gets set for the ball drops the crutch and makes the catch." Unless sue, doesn't it?

10-ROUND BOUTS NOW IN FRISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, July 7.—San Francisco will see its first ten-round boxing exhibition the latter part of this month. This was agreed upon between Jim Griffin, proprietor of the Broadway Athletic Club, who built a large arena for the purpose of holding the Sam Langford-Al Kaufman match three weeks ago.

In all probability Langford and Kaufman will have the honor of introducing the short round game into the city. Blot has the signatures of the two men to meet for him in June and figures they will fill the bill to a queery.

Blot has not, however, the necessary permit to pull a match. Neither Jim Griffin has authority from the Board of Supervisors to hold a twenty-round boxing contest this month.

Taking the advice of Supervisor John L. Herger, chairman of the police committee, who told the promoters to "get together," Blot and Griffin held a consultation shortly before midnight and agreed San Francisco should see the first ten-round fight on or about July 20.

STRAIGHT TIPS

FOR SPORT FANS

OF ALL THE BUNK THAT IS BEING handed Mr. and Mrs. Public that stuff about the fight pictures being debasing and demoralizing is the worst ever. Take it from me, that scrap out in Reno was far removed from being what some Puritanical people think it was, as a Sunday school picnic. Once the cry was started against the reproduction of the fight pictures Mayors and Governors fell into line with a rapidity that put lambs going into Wall street in the shade class. Funny isn't it, how a lot of public officials mixup in a thing like this, and forget the big questions that affect the city, state and the country. No wonder the capitalists haw-haw" behind their hands.

JOE WOODMAN, ACTING FOR SAM Langford, says that both come across with $20,000 for a match with Jack Johnson. Woodman is now trying to arrange a ten-round bout between Langford and Kaufman, but if this cannot be done, he says he will go directly to Chicago from Frisco and place the twenty then with a ratskeller.

ROSS PITTNOF HAS CERTAINLY GOT class. When a sixteen-year-old girl can swim seven miles in three hours and fifteen minutes, it is easily apparent that she is some swimmer. She's the sort of a girl we're proud to call a Yankee girl.

76 TIMES WAS JENNINGS HIT

Dropping into a chair beside Manager Jennings the other day, a Cleveland fan produced a newspaper clipping dated 1895, and hearing the statement that in the season before, 1894, "Hughey," then the brilliant, dashing shortstop for the famous old Baltimore Orioles, had reached first base by reason of being hit by pitched balls no less than seventy-six times.

"Are those figures correct? Is it possible that any one player was ever hit by pitched balls seventy-six times in one season?" this fan asked.

"I think seventy-six is the right number," recalled the Tigers's leader, and then added, laughingly, 'if I remember rightly there was exactly seventy-six black and blue marks on my anatomy at the close of the season."

"But why weren't you killed?"

"Oh," said Hughey, "there's an art about getting hit by a pitched ball just as there is an art about working a pitcher for a base on balls. Not many teams resort to these forms of baseball strategy nowadays, but both were common enough in the days of Ned Hanlon's Orioles, the most renowned ball club ever organized. The trouble with some modern teams, particularly the Tigers, is that they haven't anything to fall back upon when things are going against them—they are giving the public all they've got so to speak, every day.

"Would you go in and work the hit-by-pitched ball trick and get away with it today?"

"I'm not sure about that, but I am mighty sure that I should try it once in a while were I in the game and not sitting. Ned Hanlon's slogan was: "Get to the bases; get on by hitting if you can, get on anyway. It was a good slogan then and it would be a good slogan for any ball team to adopt to-day."

"You said a moment ago that there was an art about getting hit by a pitched ball."

"I mean as to the way to avoid getting badly hurt. The way we used to do when we decided to take a bump was to set all the muscles rigid, making the flesh as hard as a rock, almost. Then, when the ball would hit us it would bound off just as it does off that concrete wall out to right field. It would do no more damage than to leave a bruise and a mark to show where it had hit."

LANGLEY LEADS HIS LEAGUE IN BATTING

Jack Langley of Brockton is leading the Northern Baseball Association with the stick, batting an average of .340. He is playing with Freeport, and besides leading the league with the willow, he is playing brilliantly in the field. "Silicer" Boothby, former New England League player of Brockton, is pitching superbly for the Elgin team, in the same league, having won 10 out of 13 games. Silicer is the shining light at Elgin now. He pitched a no-hit game for his team against Freeport this week.

BROWN PLAYERS GO TO NEW YORK TEAM

Walter H. Snell and Arthur E. Staff of Brockton, members of this year's Brown University nine, and Delmar Orcutt of North Abington, also of the 1910 Brown team, left this week for Oneonta, N. Y., where they will play in a fast league. All three are exceptionally fast players.

HILL WINS WAGER BY NEW YORK RIDE

BROCKTON, July 7.—George R. Hill of this city, student at Columbia University, and a lover of motorcycling, has returned from a trip to New York on his machine. George A. Gore, one of the best known motorcycle men in this section, made a wager that Hill, who is considered an expert motorcyclist, could go from Brockton to New York City in ten hours or less. The wager was accepted by a well-known sportsman and Hill started Thursday at 4.30 a. m. He arrived at Columbus circle, New York City, at 2.30 p. m., making the trip of approximately 245 miles in 8 hours and 22 minutes. He rode a twin-cylinder machine.

HORSE NOTES and SPEEDWAY

Trainer Jimmy O'Donnell is driving D. W. Caton's trotters McQuillin, 2:19¼, and Belvasia, by Binagara, in their races. They are a pretty fair pair of trotters. Belvasia looks like a 2:20 trotter this year.

A. H. Parker, proprietor of Shawsheen River Farm, Bedford, has engaged ten stalls at the Readville track. He will bring down to the track a number of prominent youngsters by Acquilla, 2:19¾. A yearling by that son of Binagara has been an eighth in twenty seconds.

Trainer Robert Lundy is at the Readville track with four trotters that will be raced in the Readville matinees later in the season.

John Morgan has moved his stable of horses from Readville to Combination Park. He will have a number of the Dorchester Driving Club horses that are to be raced in the intercity matinees in his stable.

Walter Cox drove the trotter Oxford Boy, Jr., 2:17¾, a mile in 2:12 over the Dover track. The horse will probably be raced over the mile tracks later in the season.

John Young has driven the two-year-old colt Boy, by Binagara, dam by Expedition, a mile in 2:24½. The youngster has also stepped a final quarter in 38 seconds, a 2:12 gait.

Henry Titer has been a mile in 2:24¼ with a two-year-old colt by Binagara 2:08¾, out of a daughter of Aston, 2:07¾.

Norman Tallman will probably start his horses at the Dover, N. H., meeting. It now looks as though there will be a large entry for the meeting.

A new addition to Henry Titer's stable is a six-year-old black gelding by Lynn Boi, 2:10½, out of the dam of Harrison Wilkes, 2:11¾. He never saw a race track until he arrived at Readville a few days ago.

Tiny Wilkes, the classy little pacer, owned by "Mose" Hanlon of the Fellsway Driving club, has proven herself one of the greatest little horses seen at Combination Park this year, having captured the blue ribbon three times in as many starts. Tiny, on account of her size, is a great favorite among the gentle sex.

Preparing for the Beyond

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

BEYOND.

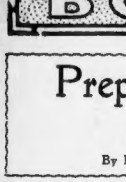
I seemeth such a little way to me
Across to that strange country, the Beyond;



And yet not strange, for it has grown
To be
The home of those of whom I am so fond,
They make it seem familiar, and
most dear,
As journeying friends
bring distant
countries near.

So close it lies, that when my sight is clear
I seem to see the gleaming of that strand;
I know I feel those who have gone
from here
Come near enough to even touch my hand.

I often think but for our veiled eyes,
We would find Heaven right round about us lies.

I cannot make it seem a day to dread
When from this dear earth, I shall journey out,
To that still dearer country of the dead,
And join the lost ones, so long dreamed about.

I love this world, yet I shall love to go
And meet the friends who wait for me, I know.

I never stand above the bier and see
The seal of death set on some well-loved face,
But that I think—One more to welcome me
When I shall cross the intervening space
Between this land, and that one Over There:
One more to make the strange Beyond seem fair.

And so to me, there is no sting to death,
And so the grave has lost its victory.
It is but crossing, with suspended breath
And white, set face, a little strip of sea,
To find the loved ones on the other shore,
More beautiful, more precious than before.

IN a wonderfully inspiring little magazine called Unity, which is filled each month with beautiful and stimulating literature, there appeared recently an article written by a man who had come into the knowledge of the truth of "New Thought" during the last year.

This man had been made whole by the power of right thinking. In consequence he has become very much exhilarated, and he wrote to the magazine mentioned that he had given up his life assurance policies, after carrying them for nineteen years, because he knows there is no death. He says:

"There are thousands to-day, all over the world, teaching and demonstrating the truth that we as individuals can be free from all sickness and diseases of every kind, but the great mass of humanity still believe that the services of an undertaker are necessary before we can really be in the kingdom of heaven. In fact, it is such a universal belief that most men sign their own death certificate. In nearly every strong box can be found a document that reads like this: 'After all my funeral expenses have been paid, I give and bequeath,' etc.

His belief in the immortality in this body

Awakened to the Truth

"But there are thousands to-day throughout our land who have become awakened to this glorious truth and by their teaching and living are seeking all their seeking brothers and sisters into the light of a new state, where all is life and happiness and there is no death."

It is unquestionably true that thousands of people who have been declared incurable by the highest medical authorities in the land have been cured by mental healing laws. Such people can be produced, with their proofs of what they assert has occurred.

But who can produce the mortal who has proven that he will never pass from the body?

Where is the man or woman who has any evidence to give out that he or she will always be here to attend to the disposition of material wealth, and will therefore need no will or testament and no life assurance policies?

One of the first individuals to make such an assertion was that wonderful man, George Francis Train.

He startled the thinking world many years ago by declaring that he would never die; that he had found the secret of immortality on earth. He lived out of doors almost continually, he ate no meat; all his food was chosen with scientific care.

For a long period of years (twenty, I think) Mr. Train never allowed any one to touch his hand. As he lived he lost our vital forces to a great extent by shaking hands with people.

He was highly spiritual in thought, and his belief in the immortality in this body was absolute.

Yet George Francis Train passed out of his body and his soul went marching on to other realms.

Helen Wilmans came next with her assertions of immortality on earth. She taught classes in the science of living always—of being forever young and well here on earth.

Yet she grew unwieldy in form; she aged; she fell ill and died. At least, the process through which she passed was what other people call death.

Before she passed on she had made many wonderful cures, and she had helped hundreds of sick, despondent and despairing people to rise to higher states of mentality and to understand the law of thought, the greatest, the most marvellous and the least understood law of the universe.

But she has gone out of her earthly body and is now in more spiritual realms.

Then Eleanor Kirk followed with her words, spoken and written, declaring that she should illustrate the statement made by Christ that the last enemy to overcome is death.

A Beautiful Soul

She knew that she had mastered the law, and that she should live on, without having to leave her body to the tomb or to the flames. Eleanor Kirk was a beautiful soul great soul, and she did much good while with us. But she, too, has gone.

We no longer see her face or hear her voice, and she had to have the services of the undertaker at last.

Now with the utmost faith in the power of the spoken word to restore health to the invalid, and to bring power, peace and plenty to those who refuse to believe in a weakness, discord and poverty, to my mind it seems a waste of time and vital forces to talk about living forever in this body.

There is a goodly army of the healed, the successful and the strong, who have come out of sickness, failure and weakness through the new philosophy which is yet the old. Since they can be proven, it is reasonable to talk of these things and declare them to be true. But we have no one who can come forward and say that he has lived in one body and remained vigorous for a hundred and fifty years.

And who can really at heart, desire to live forever in this body? While we do live, it is of great importance to keep our health, our hope, our faculties of enjoyment, our usefulness.

But to live on and on, and never change the body, seems to me as undesirable as to live forever in one suit of clothes. However well brushed and washed it might be; that suit of clothing would become very tiresome. And unless all those dear to us could live on, in the same sphere, how melancholy and dreadful would be the fate of one compelled to stay here for centuries.

This earth is but one of many rooms in the great School House of the Master.

To gain a complete education, we must go from room to room, from grade to grade.

It is foolish to assert that we are going to remain here forever, in this one small room.

Let us make the very best use of the time given us in that room; let us keep well, and happy, and appreciative of the opportunities it offers us for study; but let us regard the day of going forth as a day of graduation from one term of school and be prepared to Go Higher.

And let us keep up our life assurance policies—since we have them—or make a will! Somebody will be benefited if we do.

And many graduates from the ordinary college find this a difficult problem to solve.

"ATTENTION, girls! Algebra and calculus are as a mud pie to a peach cobbler beside this lesson that comes after—a man, and life and love with him. It's sometimes a hard nut to crack. You'll burn the midnight oil of your heart many the time—but you can learn it.

"And whisper—it's worth it. But don't let it get the best of you. 'Master it! Master it'—the old spectacled white wigs in the swallowtails and the handiwork of their scholars, 'I AM A PIG,' pinned between their shoulder blades used to say. And the advice goes here, too.

"This here's a bum 'pitchure' of the problem you're to do, but you know what I mean."

Just a Word About the Honeymoon

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

UNDOUBTEDLY there are disillusionments in the honeymoon, and disappointments, too, and a few headaches and tears.

That is perfectly natural; for when two people, who have hitherto known each other entirely through the rosy clouds of romance, suddenly come face to face with the practicalities of life, there is bound to be a readjustment.

But I cannot agree with Mabel Herbert Urner that the honeymoon is one long series of disillusionments.

If that were the case, Cupid would have to go out of business; and so I am afraid would Beatrice Fairfax.

We are great friends, little Dan Cupid and I; and often he whispers wise little bits of advice in my ear.

The honeymoon is an unsettled period and, of course, the girl has disillusionments, so also has the man.

There may be stray hours of gloom, but there are many, many hours of purest joy and sunshine.

There are exceptions to every case, and sometimes a girl finds she has married a grouchy crank, instead of a man. And sometimes the man finds he has married a nervous, peevish termagant instead of a woman.

But the average honeymoon is happy.

Of course, if the marriage is devoid of love, on either side, the honeymoon will not be happy; how could it be?

But a man cannot be fault-finding, aggressive, critical and domineering without having shown some signs of the cloven foot before he married.

I would hate to think that all honeymoons were dull and gloomy. I know a bride and groom of a week's standing, and I am quite sure that no disillusionments have marred those bright young faces.

I also know a young couple who have been married six weeks and they are as gay and happy as larks.

Some Are Born Cranks.

There are some men who should never marry; they are born old bachelors.

Marriage might cure them of their crankiness, but it would be rather sad for the woman who married them.

It is that kind of a man who makes the honeymoon a failure; he can't adjust himself to his new surroundings and responsibilities.

Mothers have much to do with the spoiling of honeymoons.

The mother who spoils her son lays up a supply of unhappiness for his wife.

If a man has been petted on and pampered and made to look upon himself as the most important person on earth, he is sure to make a poor husband, at the start out, anyway.

If she does not, he resents it and acts like a spoiled child.

There are spoiled daughters, as well as spoiled sons, and either one can spoil a honeymoon.

Will Last as Long as Love

Honeymoons will rise and set as long as love and the world shall last. So there is not the slightest use in declaring the honeymoon to be a time of joy or a time of disillusionment.

The young people must learn their own lesson.

Thank goodness that, in most cases, it is a lesson that lends itself to a happy climax and the disillusionments are so few as to be quickly forgotten.

The Manicure Lady

HER REFLECTIONS ON THE MONTH OF JUNE

"WELL, George," said the Manicure Lady, "I'm mighty glad another June has went away and found me still a unmarried lady."

"Most girls of your age would be kind of groggy in such a case," said the Head Barber.

"I don't know what you mean that for," said the Manicure Lady in her most frapped voice. "I ain't anywhere the old dame you seem to figure me. I don't think a girl of twenty-four ought to be figured a spinster."

"Neither do I," said the Head Barber. "A girl of twenty-four is a very young girl. My wife was twenty-six when I married her."

"She was old enough to have better sense," said the Manicure Lady. "But anyhow, I'm glad June has went.

A Great June This.

"This has been a great June, too. Lots of things happened. Roosevelt has came back, and Jeff caught about three million and eighty-six mountain trout, Johnson and some of them many chickens, Governor Gillett stopped the big fight for a little while, a prominent society lady got pinched up on the Canine in Central Park, New York, that great place for pinching, and we have had a regular major league murder to talk about.

"But June never appealed much to me, George. When most folks think of June they think of brides and roses and all that bunk, but I guess I'm a different sort of a girl.

"Up to our house it was certainly a fierce month. The old gent kind of fell himself slipping on the buttermilk diet he starred the last part of May, and when father slips he lights hard enough to make a star in the ice. Some poet fellow wrote something about being knee deep in June, but he didn't have much on the old gent, who has been over his head most the time.

"And brother Wilfred is having another of his foolish streaks lately. All of last month he was writing June poetry about a girl that lives in the next apartment. Wilfred hasn't met her, and he calls her his star-eyed mystery. Poets is different than most of us, I reckon, because she looks more moon-faced than star-eyed to me, but poor Wilfred is hooked up for life, and has spoiled a lot of my best stationery writing sonnets to her and then crying over them and tearing them up.

Wilfred's Foolish Streak.

"The old gent certainly gets Wilfred's goat. He told the poor boy the other day that nobody ever won a lady by writing verses and then tearing them up. He even offered to introduce himself to her and then frame it up for Wilfred, but that only made brother mad as a wildcat. Here is one of the verses he tore up:

"'Ah, strange, slim goddess with the eyes of flame,
Like one lit into my parched life you came.
Lofty my love, loftier than a steeple.
I wish that I could met you and your people.'

"I don't blame him for tearing it up," said the Head Barber. "It sounds like some of them lines they used to put on shaving mugs, like 'Always Remember Me.' I used to think that it would be a cinch for a poet to win any girl he wanted, but the only fellow I know that is a good verse writer weighs near three hundred pounds and has a crease in the back of his neck that you could almost use for a book-shelf. And the only girl that ever looks at him is his wife, and most of the time, when she looks she has to turn away and sob. Poets in real life is a good deal like the rest of us, except that they have time to drink more. There ain't no more Byrons."

"I s'pose not," agreed the Manicure Lady. "But as I was saying, I'm sure glad that June has went."

On the Deck of the Silver Moon

HIGH over the tree tops
Floateth a silver barque,
Too and I on the deck, love,
Drift on the tideless dark.
Far down in the distance,
Earth and its waters croon,
As we go—sailing
On the deck of the silver moon.

Two stars shine upon me,
Love, they must be your eyes,
As you sing to your lute of amber
Songs of the haunted skies.
Two listening roses
Tremble upon the tune,
As we go—sailing
On the deck of the silver moon.

Soft, over the tree tops
Cometh the morning beam,
And the beautiful magic moon-boat
Fades in a sea of dream;
Roses and lute of amber
Pass with the night away,
But your heart still sings to mine, love,
Your lips are mine to-day!

At breakfast next morning he was stolidly silent; so was the breakfast room clock.

"Maria, dear, there must be something wrong with that clock. I am sure I wound it up last night," he ventured at last.

"No," answered the wife, "you wound up Freddy's musical box instead, and it played 'Home, Sweet Home,' till three in the morning. The hall clock has also stopped, but I see that you have left your barometer in the barometer."

Why Women Lie

TO APPEAR WELL CONNECTED

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

"WHAT a lovely old brooch!" Miss Woodard leaned forward to admire an old cameo brooch which Mrs. Brooks, her hostess, wore at the neck of her tea gown.

"Yes, I'm very fond of that, it belonged to a great-aunt."

"I love old jewelry so," Miss Woodard said, effusively. "And I have so many such beautiful pieces from my mother and grandmother. But living as I do in hotels and boarding houses—they're very apt to be lost, so I keep them all in a safe deposit."

"That seems a pity," murmured Mrs. Brooks, "not to have the pleasure of them."

"Well, it's better than losing them. Last Winter I lost the most exquisite old bracelet. Aside from its being an heirloom, its value was quite considerable—as there were three large pearls in the clasp."

"Oh, that was too bad! One hates so to lose anything like that."

"Yes, I was quite distressed. Then, when I lost a very valuable diamond locket—a locket that belonged to my great-grandmother, I determined to put away all my old jewelry."

"And you never found either of them?"

"No, they were never found."

"Sometimes those things can be traced in pawnshops—they are often found and pawned."

"You Advertised, of Course?"

Miss Woodard moved a little nervously in her chair. "Yes, I know, but I could find no trace of them."

"You advertised, I suppose?"

"Oh, yes," with a manner of dismissing the subject. "I did everything." She rose abruptly and somewhat nervously and crossed the room to where an old India shawl hung over the back of a chair.

"How very odd! The design in this is almost exactly like one I have of my mother's. Oh, you are very fortunate to have all your lovely old family things about you. All of mine are in storage. You know, my mother and grandmother were famous Virginia belles, and had such exquisite things!"

She sighed. "But that was before the war. The family lost everything then—and we've been frightfully poor ever since." She laughed. "It's hard to have been born in a Southern family soon after the war! About all I have is a lot of old heirlooms—jewelry, laces, shawls, silver—I often say I could stock an antique store with our family relics. And furniture—such wonderful old pipes of mahogany, some of it dating back to my great-great-grandmother!"

"And it is all in storage?" Mrs. Brooks asked sympathetically.

"Oh, yes; all of it—being ruined, I suppose."

"Not if it is well packed and with a good house. Is it here in the city?"

"Oh, yes," hurriedly, "but I don't even remember the name of the place. My lawyer attends to all that."

It was not until months afterward that Mrs. Brooks happened to hear some one speak of Miss Woodard.

"Yes, she is a charming woman," was the comment, "if she didn't tell such awful lies about her family."

"Her family?" Mrs. Brooks asked, wonderingly.

"Yes. Hasn't she ever told you about her grandmother being such a society belle, and about all the lovely old heirlooms she has, and how wealthy her family was before the war?"

"Why, she did say something about having a lot of family things in storage."

"Yes," laughingly, "she always says that. Well, as a matter of fact her family has always been poor—just as poor before the war as after. Her grandmother was a seamstress and her mother a school teacher, and her father and his father before him had a small grocery store. They came from my home town and I happen to know. Good, honest people, all of them. Nothing in the family to be ashamed of. And she would be liked just as well if she told the truth, but she persists in telling these ridiculous fabrications about the splendor of her family 'before the war.'"

A Common Failing.

"Well, that's a failing of many Southern women," some one else ventured. "Almost all I have ever met were from families of wealth and distinction 'before the war.' Some of them were, of course, but many I know were not."

"And what a foolish deception! People are judged nowadays not by what their grandmothers might have been, but by what they are themselves."

"She'd be charming if she didn't tell such lies about her family."

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

HAMILTON FYNES, young, not particularly prepossessing, and giving no signs of great power, influence or wealth—quite an ordinary young man, in fact—secures the immediate attention of the captain of the Lusitania on his arrival at Liverpool by the presentation of a mysterious letter. Because of the letter Fynes is immediately given the privilege of landing by special tug, while the other passengers are held over night.

At the office of the manager of the Northwestern Railway another letter secures the attention of all the officials of the line, with the result that a special train is placed at his service in record time and all the trains held up to give him free passage to London.

Fynes took unusual precautions upon entering the train, made extensive inquiries about the others who would make the trip as train hands, and made a thorough search of the special car, the brakeman's car and the porter's closet.

In passage he repeated his scrutiny, and satisfying himself that them was no one aboard who should not be, opened some mysterious papers.

When the train entered Crewe the station master went aboard the special to greet the personage who could command such unusual privileges.

The passenger was dead.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

CHAPTER III. (Continued). The Death on the Train.

At such an hour there were only a few people upon the platform, and two station policemen easily kept back the loiterers whose curiosity had been excited by the arrival of the special. A third took up his position with his back to the entrance of the saloon and allowed no one to enter it till the return of the station master, who had gone for a doctor. The little crowd was completely mystified. No one had the slightest idea of what had happened. The attendant was besieged by questions, but he was sitting on the step of the car, in the shadow of a policeman, with his head buried in his hands, and he did not once look up. Some of the more adventurous tried to peer through the windows at the lower end of the saloon, but were rushed off in interview the guard. In a very few minutes, however, the station master reappeared upon the scene, accompanied by the doctor. The little crowd stood on one side and the two men stepped into the car.

The doctor proceeded at once with his examination. Mr. Hamilton Fynes, this mysterious person who had succeeded, indeed, in making a record journey, was leaning back in the corner of his seat, his arms folded, his head drooping a little, but his eyes still fixed in that unseeing stare. His body yielded itself unnaturally to the touch. For the main truth the doctor needed scarcely a glance at him.

"Is he dead?" the station master asked.

"Stone dead!" was the brief answer.

"Good God!" the station master muttered. "Good God!"

The doctor had thrown his handkerchief over the dead man's face. He was standing now looking at him thoughtfully.

"Did he die in his sleep, I wonder?" the station master asked. "It must have been horribly sudden! Was it heart disease?"

The doctor did not reply for a moment. He seemed to be thinking out some problem.

"The body had better be removed to the station mortuary," he said at last. "Then, if I were you, I should have the saloon shunted onto a siding and left absolutely untouched. You had better place two of your station police in charge while you telephone to Scotland Yard."

"To Scotland Yard?" the station master exclaimed.

The doctor nodded. He looked around as though to be sure that none of that anxious crowd outside could overhear.

"There's no question of disease here," he explained. "The man has been murdered!"

The station master was horrified—horrified and blankly incredulous.

"Murdered!" he repeated. "Why, it is impossible! There was no one else on the train except the attendant—not a single other person. All my advices said one passenger only."

The doctor touched the man's coat with his finger, and the station master saw what he had not seen before—saw what made him turn away, a little sick. He was a strong man, but he was not used to this sort of thing, and he had barely recovered yet from the first shock of finding himself face to face with a dead man. Outside the crowd upon the platform was growing larger. White faces were being pressed against the windows at the lower end of the saloon.

"There is no question about the man having been murdered," the doctor said, and even his voice shook a little. "His own hand could never have driven that knife home. I can tell you, even now it was done. The man who stabbed him was in the compartment behind there, leaned over, and drove this thing down, just missing the shoulder. There was no struggle or fight of any sort. It was a diabolical deed!"

"Diabolical indeed!" the station master echoed hoarsely.

"You had better give orders for us to be shunted down on to a siding first you are," the doctor continued, "and send one of your men to telephone to Scotland Yard. Perhaps it would be as well, too, not to touch those papers until some one comes. See that the attendant does not go home, or the guard. They will probably be wanted to answer questions."

The station master stepped out to the platform, summoned an inspector, and gave a few brief orders. Slowly the saloon was backed out of the station again on to a neglected siding, a sort of backwater for spare carriages and empty trucks—an ignominious resting place, indeed, after its splendid journey through the night. The doors at both ends were closed, and two policemen placed on duty to guard them. The doctor and the station master seated themselves out of sight of their gruesome companion, and the station master told all that he knew about the despatch of the special and the man who had ordered it. The attendant, who still moved about like a man in a dream, brought them some brandy and soda and served them with shaking hand. They all three talked together in whispers, the attendant telling them the few incidents of the journey down, which, except for the dead man's nervous desire for solitude, seemed to possess very little significance. Then at last there was a sharp tap at the window. A tall, quietly dressed man, with reddish side and clear gray eyes, was helped up into the car. He saluted the doctor mechanically. His eyes were already travelling around the saloon.

"Inspector Jacks from Scotland Yard, sir," he announced. "I have another man outside. If you don't mind, we'll have him in."

"By all means," the station-master answered. "I am afraid that you will find little rather a serious job. We have left everything untouched so far as we could."

Scotland Yard Men.

The second detective was assisted to clamber up into the car. It seemed, however, as though the whole force of Scotland Yard could scarcely do much towards elucidating an affair which, with every question which was asked and answered, grew more mysterious. The papers upon the table before the dead man were simply circulars and prospectuses of no possible importance. His suit-case contained merely a few toilet necessaries and some fine linen. There was not a scrap of paper or even an envelope of any sort in his pockets.

"Stone dead!" was the brief answer of the physician to the query put to him by the worried and excited station master

In a small leather case they found a thousand dollars in American notes, five tenpound Bank of England notes, and a single visiting card on which was engraved the name of Mr. Hamilton Fynes. In his trousers pocket was a handful of gold. He had no other personal belongings of any sort. The space between the lining of his coat and the material itself was duly noticed, but it was empty. His watch was a cheap one, his linen unmarked, and his clothes bore only the name of a great New York retail establishment.

He had certainly entered the train alone, and both guard and attendant were ready to declare positively that no person could have been concealed in it. The engine driver, on his part, was equally ready to swear that not once from the moment when they had arrived within twenty miles of London, had they traveled at less than forty miles an hour. At Willsboro he had found a signal against him which had brought him nearly to a standstill, and under the regulations he had passed through the station at ten miles an hour. These were the only occasions, however, on which he had slackened speed at all. The train attendant, who was a novice man, began to shiver again and imagine unmentionable things. The guard, who had never left his own brake, went home and dreamed that his effigy had been added to the collection of Madame Tussaud. The reporters were the only people who were really happy with the exception, perhaps, of inspector Jacks, who had a weakness for a difficult case.

Fifteen miles north of London, a man lay by the roadside in the shadow of a plantation of pine trees, through which he had staggered only a few minutes ago. His clothes were covered with dust, he had lost his cap, and his trousers were cut about the knee as though from a fall. He was somewhat less than medium height, dark, slender, with delicate features, and hair almost coal black. His face, as he moved slowly from side to side upon the grass, was livid with pain. Every now and then he raised himself and listened. The long belt of main road, which passed within a few feet of him, seemed almost deserted. Once a cart came lumbering by, and the man who lay there, watching, drew closely back into the shadows. A youth on a bicycle passed, singing to himself. A boy and girl strolled by, arm in arm, happy, apparently, in their profound silence. Only a couple of fields away shone the red and green lights of the railway track. Every few minutes the goods-trains went rumbling over the metals. The man on the ground heard them with a shiver. Resolutely he kept his face turned in the opposite direction. The night mail went thundering northward, and he clutched even at the nettles which grew amongst the grass where he was crouching, as though filled with a sudden terror.

Then there was silence once more—silence which became deeper as the hour approached midnight. Passers-by were few. Fewer still the birds and animals came out from their hiding places. A rabbit scurried across the road; a rat darted down the ditch; a stream. Now and then birds moved in the undergrowth, and the man, who was struggling all the time with a deadly faintness, felt the silence grow more and more oppressive. He began even to wonder where he was. He closed his eyes. Was that really the tinkling of a guitar, the perfume of almond and cherry blossom, floating to him down the warm wind? He expected a thing that he did not hesitate for a moment to obey it, without even waiting to complete a deal. When he entered the apartment, he saw a slim, but determined-looking young man, whose clothes were covered with dust, and who, although he sat with folded arms and grim face, was very nearly in a state of collapse.

"You seem to have met with an accident," the doctor remarked. "How did it happen?"

"I have been run over by a motor car," he patient said, speaking slowly and with something singularly agreeable in his voice, notwithstanding its slight accent of pain. "Can you patch me up till I get to London?"

The doctor looked him over.

"What were you doing in the road?" he asked.

"I was riding a bicycle," the other answered. "I dare say it was my own fault; I was certainly on the wrong side of the road. You can see what has happened to me. I am bruised and cut; my side is painful, and also my knee. A car is waiting outside now to take me to my home, but I thought that I had better stop and see you."

The doctor was a humane man, with a tolerable practice, and he forgot all about his bridge party. For half an hour he worked over his patient. At the end of that time he gave him a brandy and soda and placed a box of cigarettes before him.

"You'll do all right now," he said. "That's a nasty cut on your leg, but you've no broken bones."

"I feel absolutely well again, thank you very much," the young man said. "I will smoke a cigarette, if I may. The steady, I think you, no?"

"Just as you like," the doctor answered. "I won't say that you are not better without it. Help yourself to the cigarettes. Are you going back to London in the motor car, then?"

"Yes!" the patient answered. "It is waiting outside for me now, and I must not keep the man any longer. Will you let me know, if you please, how much I owe you?"

The doctor hesitated. Fees were a rare thing with him, and the evidences of his patient's means were somewhat doubtful. The young man put his hand into his pocket.

"I am afraid," he said, "that I am not a very presentable looking object, but I am glad to assure you that I am not a poor man. I am able to pay your charges and to still feel that the obligation is very much on my side."

The doctor summoned up his courage.

A Golden Fee.

"We will say a guinea, then," he remarked with studied indifference.

"You must allow me to make it a little more than that," the patient answered. "Your treatment was worth it. I feel perfectly recovered. Good-night, sir!"

The doctor's eyes sparkled as he glanced at the gold which his visitor had laid upon the table.

"You are very good, I'm sure," he murmured. "I hope you will have a comfortable journey. With a nerve like yours you'll be all right in a day or so."

He let his patient out and watched him depart with some curiosity, watched until the great motor car had swung round the corner of the street and started on its journey to London.

"No bicycle there," he remarked to himself, as he closed the door. I wonder what they did with it."

MYSTERY IN MAN'S DEATH BY DROWNING

What is believed to be one of the most baffling murder mysteries that has ever confronted the police of this city was revealed to-day through an autopsy performed by Dr. George B. Magrath, assistant Medical Examiner of Suffolk County, upon the body of a man taken from the harbor near the South Ferry slip at East Boston.

The identity of the victim is as yet unknown. His hat, coat and vest are missing, and nothing was found in his pockets which would lead to the identification of the remains.

A deep scalp wound, evidently inflicted by a club or some other blunt instrument, and which Dr. Magrath says the man sustained before his body struck the water, was found on the right side of his head. It was this wound which led Dr. Magrath to believe the man may have been murdered and to report the matter to the police.

In the opinion of the police the man may have been held up, beaten into insensibility and robbed on some lonely street near the harbor and then thrown into the harbor to conceal the crime. The body has been in the water about three days.

The police are without a starting point toward the solution of the mystery. They are making every effort to locate some person who be able to identify the victim. The body is at the North Grove street morgue.

A search of the list of missing people at police headquarters failed to reveal the name of any person who answers the description of the victim. No marks were found upon his clothing and a search is being made for the missing coat and vest. Should these be found it is thought the man may be identified.

From the appearance of the man's clothing it is thought he was a fisherman. He was about thirty years old, five feet ten inches tall, weighing in the neighborhood of 150 pounds, of medium complexion and smooth face. He wore black trousers, a white outing shirt with black dots, white woolen underwear, white stockings and black laced shoes.

It was at first believed the body was that of Richard Callahan of Cross street, Charlestown, who was seen to jump from the Charlestown bridge after first removing his coat and vest about a week ago Callahan, however, was a younger man and bore a wound upon his head in which seven stitches had been taken.

BOY SCOUT MOVEMENT IS SPREADING THROUGH ALL NEW ENGLAND

Some questions in connection with the American Boy Scout Movement, now making such a phenomenal growth, continue to arise. New boys are constantly hearing of this great project. Many do not know that full information is printed from day to day, they send in letters by the hundreds to the New England Headquarters, 5 Bromfield street, Boston. Here is a specimen:

91 Monroe st., Lynn Mass.

Mr. G. H. Gordon, 5 Bromfield st., Boston, Mass.

Dear sir:—I hereby return my application blanks properly filled out.

I have at the present time a khaki uniform and leggings, army felt hat. I also have a $1.50 rifle—is that all I need, or can I purchase my uniform from you.

If I pay you a dollar a week for three weeks. Please give me full information as to what the official uniform is like, also what the camp expense will be. Where we go to camp and where will I report.

Please give me this information as I will thank you very much.

Hoping you will answer my questions, I beg to remain,

Respectfully yours,
JAMES T. MARTIN.

As to Uniforms.

There are in New England thousands of boys who have some kind of a uniform of the rough-rider or scout order. A great many boys have rifles.

Many boys have asked the question about paying for their uniforms on the installment plan. Others want to know when they are going to camp. Here are the answers:

For the present season, boys may use such uniforms as they have, if they are reasonably near the official uniform in appearance. In Massachusetts such organizations are not allowed to carry firearms. They may, however, carry sporting guns such as are used by the Boys' Brigade. For the present American Boy Scouts will probably use a staff only to resemble a lance. The English boys do, and find it very serviceable. Later on, when we grow strong enough, big enough and sufficiently well disciplined, the scouts may be allowed to carry real guns. The matter of what has been said before, at one or more of the Boston stores and also by the principal clothing dealers in the other New England cities. It is not likely that any boy will be denied the privilege of buying his uniform on reasonable terms. Every clothing merchant will keep in mind the cardinal principal of our Boy Scout law, which says:

"A SCOUT'S HONOR TO BE TRUSTED."

In the several thousand mail applications for information received at the New England Headquarters of the American Boy Scout Movement it was but natural that some of the boys should make errors in giving addresses. Several letters, which Headquarters sent full information have been returned on this account as improperly addressed. Every boy should read this list and see if his name appears there.

If he finds it there he must send his correct address to G. H. Gordon, secretary of the New England Headquarters, American Boy Scout, No. 5 Bromfield street, Boston, who will then forward full information to him at once.

Dear Sir:—I have read all about your Boy Scout Movement. It greatly pleases me, for I have been trying to join something in that line. I have read all about the Dunlap Scouts.

You see, I am to get ten 4100 boys to join the Boy Scouts. I will do my best. I am sure of them. We can train according to your orders, which we will gladly do, every one of us.

Even if I do away over here in Westfield, I don't believe that makes much difference. We are in for the right kind of a place. Just send us your orders and the enlistment certificate and I tell you week after week how we are getting along.

Yours truly,

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; LATEST FINANCIAL NEWS

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

Prices are now at such a level that purely technical causes sway them.

Stocks have still to undergo the ordeal of a variety of developments timed for Friday and comprising the government's crop report, the publication of the June copper statistics, and the Atchison dividend action, while still further along is the added test of the market under possible change in the St. Paul payment.

The short interest is immense. A single pole might carry certain issues upward 5 points or more, and yet not be overtheless. It is the history of all long drawn forward movements that they are following a period of dullness and torpor. If "standard oil pools" really sought yesterday they did so either to cover short contracts or for long range investment purposes.

Genuine liquidation is in progress, but a short interest of great proportions has been built up and it works to the rear on every sharp break, thus forcing rallies.

The alleged conference between Taft and Knapp may not be correct, but there are circumstances detailed that force the interest to pay attention to it. Its importance lies in the intimation that the government is going to do some more things to the stock market.

It is perfectly absurd to think the proposition of short sales can prevent a decline of prices. Short sales never put any market down more than temporarily. Every real move has been on genuine liquidation, just as the present one is. It is not surprising that Government officials should imagine that short sales could permanently depress a market because short sales are evidently the only kind with which politicians have any familiar acquaintance. Washington has only made temporary attacks on the market. It has never undertaken a prolonged campaign.

Although the Steel Trust denies that any reduction is being made in prices, the independents are cutting freely, and even then are not getting much business. The steel trade is somewhat demoralized. The fact that a Canadian company, capitalized at $4,000,000, is putting out fifty miles of structural material is yet an omen of the Steel Trust, with $100,000,000 capital, is causing some persons to ponder. The Canadians have just taken an important structural steel contract for the Panama Canal, undribidding all American competitors.

Hay has advanced $2 a ton in the last ten days. Even the horses are living high. With hay at 34 cents a pound, it is not going to do the financial situation any good to figure the drain in feeding rates that help the railroads out temporarily, but if it puts the stock market up, as is probably will, the public should sell every share of investment stock, for a further advance in prices will only end to more drastic liquidation.

STOCKS JUMP ABOUT A POINT

NEW YORK, July 7.—Gains of about a point were made by the Standard Investment stocks in Wall street to-day. Trading was dull but buying caused the market to advance readily. Union Pacific, Reading, Atchison, Steel and Southern Pacific were the favorites of trading and all scored advances of a point or more. There was a fair demand for specialties and Consolidated Gas headed this group with an advance of 2 points.

The Bank of England's discount rate remained unchanged for the week of July 7 on the fact that England made arrangements exchanging for the week of July 7 $2,000,000 of gold to America. Advances were reported in London, but later became strong following the advance in New York.

Trading on the curb was quiet with prices of the leading mining shares steady.

CAMBRIDGE BANK DIVIDEND

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The comptroller of the currency's semi-yearly dog fatality report obtained at the Treasury Department, will shortly pay a dividend of 60 per cent. to the depositors of the National City Bank of Cambridge, now in the hands of receivers. This will be the first dividend to be paid. It is also said that other dividends will be paid.

DEDHAM TO IMPROVE.

Twenty Indian relishes gathered at a special town meeting held at Memorial Hall, Dedham, last night, remained in session for twenty minutes and voted to appropriate $2,000 for town improvements and also to amend $1,000 to be expended for the season on Avery street and $600 for circle work. George Granville Darling, a lawyer, acted as moderator.

"Men Who Drink Only Light Beer and Wine Do Not Get Drunk," Says Melville Stone

Could Not Americans Avoid Drunkenness as Europeans Avoid It? We Think That They Could

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

It may be stated positively that the United States Steel Company—the biggest industrial concern and the biggest trust in the world—has decided to fight intemperance—not by prohibition, BUT BY THE ENCOURAGEMENT OF REALLY TEMPERATE DRINKS AND THE DISCOURAGEMENT OF WHISKEY.

At the great steel city of Gary, in Indiana—the city of tens of thousands of workmen, that represents already an investment of sixty millions of steel company earnings—the first sane experiment in prohibition will be made.

The steel company will take no personal part in the management of any institution for the sale of drink. But it will encourage men that WILL undertake a demonstration of their belief that drunkenness is caused by whiskey, gin and the other poisons, and that drunkenness can be fought most effectively—NOT BY PROHIBITION, WHICH ENCOURAGES WHISKEY, BUT BY EXCLUSIVE SELLING OF LIGHT WINES AND BEERS UNDER DECENT CIVILIZED CONDITIONS.

The plan is to permit upon territory controlled by the steel company in Gary the sale ONLY of light wines and light beers. This sale will be organized as it is in Germany and in France. There will be no whiskey or gin or brandy—no highly alcoholic poisons sold at all. But, common sense and real temperance, and a liberal expenditure of money, will be combined in fighting the scores of dives, whiskey, gin and alcohol selling dens that have been established all around the outskirts of Gary.

It is hoped and believed when the workingmen with their families and the other inhabitants of Gary are enabled to secure, at reasonable prices, under pleasant, cheerful, social conditions, the mild and relatively harmless stimulants, that THE WHISKEY AND GIN BUSINESS WILL BE DRIVEN OUT, AND REAL TEMPERANCE ESTABLISHED IN THE GREAT CITY OF STEEL BY THE LAKE.

Certainly no more valuable experiment could be made by any industrial organization. If the experiment succeeds—and all men who understand the subject hope and think it will—one of the great problems of American life will have been solved, and an excellent lesson taught by the steel-making city to all the cities and villages in the Union.

Melville Stone, the head of the Associated Press, hearing of a conference held by Judge Gary, of the steel company; George W. Perkins, of the firm of J. Pierpont Morgan, and others, in connection with the plan to experiment WITH TRUE TEMPERANCE at Gary, said:

"That is about the first and the most sensible thing that I have heard on the temperance question.

"You must fight drunkenness with real temperance, fight poisonous and dangerous drink with really temperate stimulants.

"I lived for three years in Switzerland at one time; practically everybody drank mild wines and light beers, and I saw just one drunken man in Switzerland in three years, and he was not really drunk, only a little foolish and flustered."

What Melville Stone says of Switzerland, Griscom, formerly American Ambassador to Italy, said of Italy. And those that understand and that have traveled know that the same is true of France and of Germany.

Where the mild stimulants are sold at reasonable prices under cheerful, pleasant, social conditions, DRUNKENNESS IS PRACTICALLY UNKNOWN.

If these things can be in Switzerland, Italy, France, Germany and other European countries, WHY NOT IN AMERICA!

Why not use common sense, moderation, make allowance for human nature and the dulness of life, AND THAT WHICH IS INEVITABLE!

Why insist on prohibition laws that are disregarded, breed crime and encourage whiskey?

Why say to human beings, "You shall not drink," when you know perfectly well THAT MEN WILL DRINK?

Why do not the Prohibitionists confine themselves and their attention to opposing that which causes drunkenness and crime—the poisonous alcoholic liquors?

Fortunately, the experiment is to be made at Gary, if plans do not fail. If the experiment succeeds there—as it must, if properly undertaken—it will be tried elsewhere, it will spread all over the country. And this country will become really temperate.

Temperance means self-control—not arbitrary compulsion from the outside.

What President Taft Said of His Wife

Too Bad Others So Often Forget to Say It

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

President Taft told an interesting truth, and rebuked egotists who forget what their wives do for them, when he said, pointing to Mrs. Taft: "If she had let me alone I should now be dozing on the Circuit Court bench."

It isn't likely that Mr. Taft WOULD have dozed all this time on the Circuit Court bench, or anywhere else. For while he is a congenial, smiling, stout gentleman, he is by no means a dozer.

But it is also extremely probable that Mrs. Taft has kept his ambition alive, has insisted on his dropping smaller things to undertake bigger ones. There is no doubt that Mr. Taft owes a great deal of his success to his wife, or that the country owes a great deal of what Mr. Taft has done to the wife always urging him on.

It would be well for more of the world's husbands to appreciate what their wives do for them. Many a man talks about a NAGGING wife, and pities himself, when he ought to thank the good Lord that he has somebody at home to play the part of the "gadfly" and make him move around and show some signs of activity.

Many a man has complained because a wife wanted a better house, or a better automobile, or a better school for the children. And he has pitied himself, when in reality his wife's demands have MADE HIM WORK, brought out the ability and power that was within him.

To make a really complete human being, two halves are necessary—the man and a woman. Too many men forget the work that the other half does, and take the credit that belongs to the other half.

This applies to bachelors as well as to married men. For there are few men in the world that have not been helped by SOME woman—often by more than one—beginning with the mother.

Men are vain creatures. They want to think well of themselves and they want others to praise them. They nearly all want some woman to praise them, AND THEY HAVE TO WORK FOR THE PRAISE.

That explains about 90 per cent. of the work done by men in this world.

Mr. Foxcroft Was Not the Issue

Boston's Home Rule Demand Should Have Influenced Governor Draper

By re-appointing Civil Service Commissioner Frank Foxcroft of Cambridge, Governor Draper has not put a stop to the agitation as to whether or not a citizen of Boston should have been named in his place.

"Home rule for Boston" is going to be a big issue in the next State campaign. The Democrats are going to make the most of it and the Republicans, no matter how hard they may try, will not be able to dodge it.

The question is not what sort of a Civil Service Commissioner Mr. Foxcroft has been or may be. His personality has nothing to do with it at all.

Mayor Fitzgerald has urged nothing against Mr. Foxcroft as a man. If outsiders are to be allowed to govern the city of Boston, Foxcroft is probably as acceptable as anybody.

What the Mayor has urged and what a strong local sentiment has demanded is that Boston should be represented on the Civil Service Commission by one of its own citizens.

To say that the Governor might have appointed a Boston man if the Mayor had not made such a splurge about it is a silly evasion of the rights of the proposition.

Aside from any political or personal aspect of the case, there is a widespread feeling among citizens of Boston that Boston should be allowed to have at least a small hand in the governing of itself.

Proper checks upon mal-administration and graft are readily welcomed by the lovers of good government. But in the case of the city of Boston there will be complaint and dissatisfaction so long as the most important official acts of the Mayor are passed upon by an alien board clothed with the most arbitrary authority.

Governor Draper makes a mistake when he attempts to create the impression that there was not a real demand for a change in this instance. However much he may attempt to confuse the general feeling that local citizenship is entitled to representation on the body with suspected personal aims and motives of Mayor Fitzgerald, the fact remains that, among Boston voters, many could have been found to fulfil all the requirements of the Civil Service Commission and to relieve that body of its foreign aspect.

Edmund Billings, president of the Good Government Association, an organization that has persistently opposed the Mayor's politics, urged the appointment of a Boston man. The political factions which the Mayor and Mr. Billings represented in the last city election showed a voting strength of 95,000 out of a total registered vote of 112,000.

Is the Governor fair in ignoring such a demand? Is it not quite possible that he permitted his personal feeling and Republican partisanship to blind his judgment?

Whether he did or not, in the demand for a square deal for the city of Boston that is to be made in the next campaign, the Civil Service Commission and Governor Draper will furnish the argument for the Democrats.

He Writes About Ma's Old Maid Cousins

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

Two (2) of Ma's cousins calm to visit us for over the Fourth of July. They calm here all the way from Portland, Main. Pa dident like them, they looked jest like old maids & they was old maids, too. One (1) of them was forty yeers old last April & the other was forty 1 last June. They dident like Pa any better than Pa liked them. They got mad at Pa the first nite they calm to the house, beekaus wen they calm Ma had a musical nite all fixed up for her two cousins, & all the serving Pa was singing "Darling I am Growing Old, Silver Threads Among the Gold." Then Ma asked Pa to stop singing, so he recited poems like "You are Old, Father William," & "The Assabunt Mariner," & "The Poor Old Slave has Gone to Rest." Everything Pa recited was sumthing about sumbody being old so Ma made him stop reciting the rains as he had made him stop singing. But that dident stop Pa from talking about the word "Old." He kep using it all the time.

I shall never forget, sed Pa, the nite back in the old days in dear old Georgia wen my aged parents was setting around a old magnolia tree.

I think old things are the best, sed one of Ma's old maid cousins, like old frends, old wine, old memories, etc.

Oh, I dunno know, sed Pa. I know lots of old things that dosnt make many frends. How about old chestnuts, sed Pa, & how about old egg is different, Pa sed. It may cling to you, but yure memries of the clinging will not be happy. By the way, Pa sed, I saw a butiful rouag thing on the street last nite.

Who was she sed Ma & the old maids cousins.

It wasent a girl, sed Pa, it was electric sign. I guess I fooled you old gals that time, sed Pa.

There are no old gals here, sed one of Ma's cousins, only three ladies that is getting tired of listening to the talk of a man wich has setde-antly nee goodby to what littel sense he ever had. Yure husband, sed one of Ma's cousins to Ma, must have been borg under the dog star, beekaus he certingly has the manners of a cur.

All rite, my dear old friends, sed Pa. You may say all the crude things you wish about me. Even in the old days, Pa sed, wen old men was scolded by old ladies which had nevver done no wedding march, it was the calm old story. Then Pa went to bed, after he had sed the word Old a milyun times.

Charitable Giving

By BOLTON HALL

Being pretty well acquainted with many large givers and knowing accurately the affairs of a great many persons, it astonishes me to see how the poor give their last cent to help those in need, while those of us who are rich give comparatively nothing. In my own acquaintance I can name you many rich men, some of the millionaires and some of them multi-millionaires, large givers, small givers and selfish givers, according to their natures, and some whose modest motto is, "What I give is nothing to anybody;" yet all their gifts put together do not compare, in proportion, with the gifts made by the poor to their fellows.

In 1891 I made a list of the charitable persons upon whom New York's institutions depend for regular support, and found that they numbered nearly 10,000, among them many of very moderate means. I estimate that the number has increased now to about 18,000. If all the rich in that list gave in proportion to their ability, we would not hear of charities being crippled for lack of funds. It is safe to say that hardly one or the rich gives enough to necessitate the denial of anything he, in his way of living, really needs, or even greatly desires.

Some one will rise to say that there are "noble exceptions." There may be many; only one has ever come under my notice, and I challenge any man to say that he knows even one multi-millionaire who gives for beneficence all above what he needs for a comfortable living. I do not believe there is such a man in America, yet many a rich man in this country is looked upon as an example for all, because he gives a portion of his superabundance to aid his "less fortunate" brother.

I can almost hear my friends reminding me of the millions given for education, for science, for libraries, hospitals and other institutions, but that does not affect my contention. If a man has gathered several hundred millions in a few years, it is a comparatively small "hush-sage to fortune" to pay over ten millions or so to the cause of education or charity. He could not use all the rest by any mode of living yet in vogue. Even if he had but ten millions and gave away nine of them he would not suffer for any necessity for comfortable living, and he would not have given to the public any unjust share of what he had gathered.

For it is getting to be shown, even to the people who contribute to them, that swollen fortunes are made possible only through some monopoly or special privilege, and this cannot be granted to some without first having been taken away from many. Monopoly should, therefore, bring high prices, and if, because of privilege to some, the many are made poor, then the favored ones should come to the rescue.

Unless the very rich give to the body of the people all that the people would have had if no privilege had been given to a few, they have not paid their fair share of their honest dues to the public. And when they are ready to do this they will not ask special privileges or clamor for monopolies, for they will, every one, have learned "to love his brother as himself."

When monopoly is abolished, capital will be owned by the creator—labor. Then we will hear no more of the laborer being robbed of his hire, the laborer will get his product, which is his by right of production. That part of it which is not wanted for use will be sent to market, and the benefit later as public utilities and which now goes as interest would remain with those who earn it; wages would be increased, leisure opportunity and would go to the worker.

One of the greatest hindrances to bringing in this condition is the opportunity our charities offer the rich for deluding their own consciences to dispose of their surplus profits, to still the insistent murmuring of the discontented, and to bear a name for good deeds that stands them in good stead and is an actual asset. Nevertheless, with no rich benefactors, the poor give more than the rich. This poor widow hath cast in more than they all." (Luke xxi., 3.)
